$8,000,000 IN JAP MATERIAL IS HELD UP BY CUSTOMS

Telephone Supplies For Anfuites Fall Into Officials' Hands

PROJECT BALKED

Long Distance And Cable System Is Halted By Act

Telephone material and other electrical supplies shipped from Japanese factories and valued at over $8,000,000 has been held up by the Customs authorities here upon instructions from Peking. The goods are the property of two local Japanese importers, who had secured a contract from Anfu leaders in their regime for the constructions of a long distance telephone system and a cable service in China.

The material which were being shipped by huge installments until orders were received from the Central Government to prohibit their importation were taking place without permit. Nor have the Japanese firms secured any special permission from either the Telegraph Administration or the Telephone Service it is charged.

When the material was shipped to Shanghai, the Customs authorities immediately made inquiries and the cargo was found to be without permits in spite of the fact that it had been declared as contraband of war.

The Ministry of War especially maintained a firm attitude towards the importation of such material and requested the Customs Administration to hold the cases up in the Shanghai godowns.

The contract was signed, it is stated, by certain Anfu officials on behalf the Government. But the present administration flatly refuses to recognise the validity of the contract and repudiates all the liabilities arisen out of the breach of the contract.

This is the first case yet made known that Peking proposes to repudiate the contracts entered into by the Anfu party.

POLICE SEEKING THIRD SUSPECT IN MURDER CASE

After successfully securing the conviction of two of the authors in the sing song girl murder case, the Municipal police here are seeking a third suspect in the sensational crime perpetrated in the Hungjao suburbs on the night of June 25.

The man is described as answering to the name of Fan Li-san, about 30 years old and a native of Soochen, Anhui. This man worked as a tea broker in Shanghai and travelled extensively in Ishing, Hangchow and other cities. He is said to have smoked opium. He is comparatively dark in complexion and stands about 5 feet 5 inches.

At sometime the man suspected worked at a tea shop at 335 Sinza Road and it is said he speaks several dialects fluently.

The murder, it will be recalled, was one of the most sensational in the history of Shanghai crimes. The 20-year-old entertainer motored upon the invitation of the principal criminal out to the scene of murder and, after chloreform was applied, according to the confession of the convict, Yen Jui-sung, her jewels valued at $6,000, were taken away by the slayers.

She was then killed with a silken sash and her body was left in a wheat field.

Hsiung Ke-wu Again Occupies Chengtu; Rebels Retiring

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Chengtu, September 6 (delayed).—There was heavy fighting all last night outside the North gate of Chengtu. The Confederacy troops have abandoned Chengtu, which was re-occupied today by an advanced guard of the allied Szechuen troops, under Generals Hsiung Ke-wu and Liu Tsen-hou, from Shensi, on behalf of the Peking government.

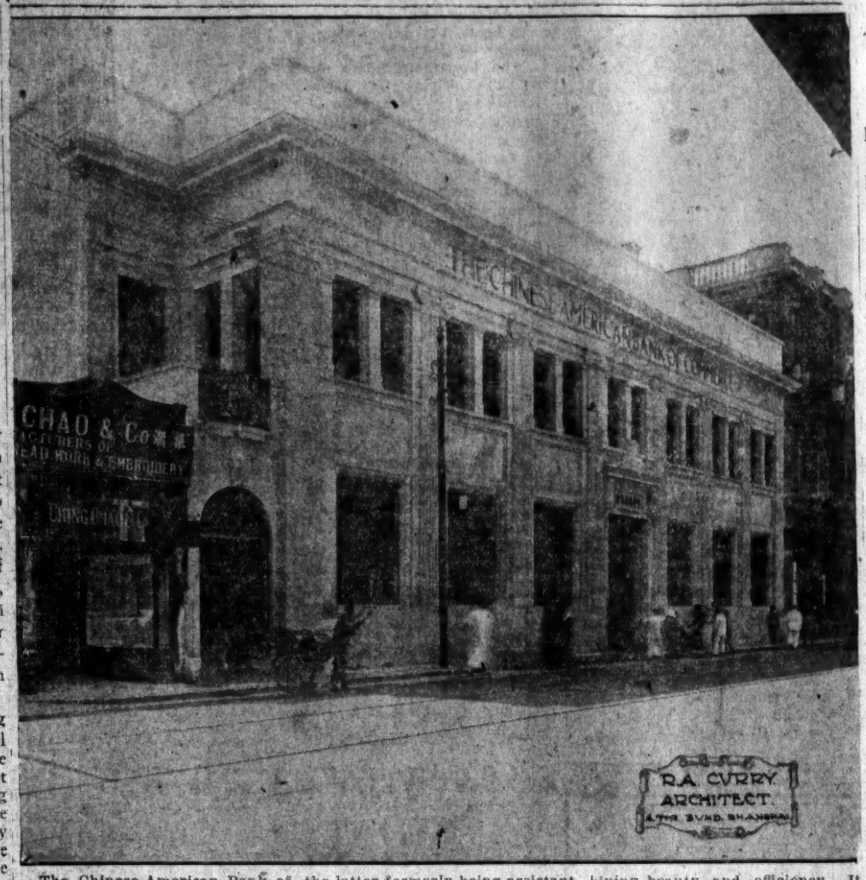
Chinese American Bank Opens Shanghai Office; Reception Being Held Today In New Building



The Chinese-American Bank of Commerce, Commercial and Industrial Bank of China, operating under special charter from the Chinese government opens for business here on Nanking Road today. The bank was organised by a group of American financiers in co-operation with Chinese financiers about a year ago and now has offices in Peking, Tientsin, Chentow, Hankow, Harbin and Manila. Branches in Tsinan and Canton are soon to be opened.

A reception will be held today between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at its home, 11 Nanking Road.

Chien Nan-shun, former premier, is president, while J. A. Thomas and Hsu En-yuan are vice-presidents. H. A. Allen is manager of the Shanghai branch and the assistant managers are Louis Shen and Soo Yii K. Shen, the latter formerly being assistant manager of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway. The capital of the bank is $10,000,000, half being subscribed by the American shareholders and half by the Chinese shareholders.

The office has been completely remodeled and rebuilt for banking purposes. R. A. Curry and associate, L. E. Hudec, were the architects. The building occupies 105 feet on Nanking Road and is two stories in height. The elevation shows the influence of the Palladian idea with an adaptation of Greek motives, which have become a feature of bank building construction in the United States. It supplies the unconscious feeling of strength and security necessary in bank construction. The interior chamber is octagonal combining beauty and efficiency. It is fitted in Italian marble with bronze fittings and teak woodwork. Although limited by the retention of the old walls and pillars, the proportions of the interior are well balanced. The architect has made free use of the revived Greek motives. The effect is unusually new and pleasing.

The general contractor was Ma Fei, while Andersen, Meyer and Company installed the plumbing, heating, electric wiring, and electrical fittings. The marble was supplied by Finachairo and Company; the furnishings by Arts and Crafts and V. K. Shen and Son. The safe is of Herring, Hall Marvin type, installed by Mustard and Company.

The building has been completed in four months.

JAPAN ADVISED TO BE PATIENT IN AMERICAN DEALS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, September 23.—The Chuo Shimbun, quoting, an anonymous spokesmen for the "leading group in the House of Peers," advises the Japanese people to continue to maintain a calm and patient attitude towards America. "Attacking the Hara Government for the lukewarmness of its attitude," the journal continues, "is unproductive of good because aggressiveness on the part of Mr. Hara would not be likely to produce favorable results and might possibly result in suicide for Japan.

Should Japan, failing diplomatically, resort to arms, the first step would be the withdrawal of Japanese from America, which is exactly what the Americans want, and the second step would be the suspension of commerce, resulting in Japan losing her silk and tea export and her cotton import trade, which would do Japan tremendous damage.

Even should the Japanese occupy a portion of the American mainland, Japan would pay a very heavy bill while, if the Americans occupied a portion of Japan, it would seal the fate of this country.

The wisest policy is to repose confidence in the national character of the Americans and wait for a favorable turn of events."

Dominions In Plan For World Publicity

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 21.—The Ninth Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire has begun its sittings at Toronto under the presidency of Lord Desborough. The delegates present hail from many parts of the Empire.

The Congress decided on the establishment of a permanent bureau to standardise information on Dominions and Colonial methods of valuing imports and exports.

HWAIYUEN RAINS CHECK CHOLERA

New Tuchun Of Anhui Is Called Disciple Of Chang Hsun

(China Press Correspondence)

Hwaiyuen, Sept. 22.—The cholera, which has been so prevalent in this region, during the last month has begun to abate very noticeably. Three days of hard rain cleared away much of the filth and during the last few days no fresh cases of cholera have been reported.

The retreating forces of Chang Ching-yao have passed on to the north-west. The tales of murder, assault and looting that come in are pathetic in the extreme. Whole villages have been wiped out and the savings of a lifetime robbed.

With the removal of Ni Shih-chung as Tuchun of Anhui, little unrest has been caused. Chang Wen-seng, the new Tuchun, has not yet arrived in Pengpu, but no difficulty is anticipated. There was fear at first that Ni's soldiers would mutiny and for some time the business in Pengpu has been at a standstill.

Now however, the new Tuchun, after consultation with the old leaders in Anhui has come to an understanding with them. Most of the old soldiers have either been moved or dismissed. The streets are heavily policed at night and no one is allowed to be on the street after 9 o'clock. The new Tuchun is an understudy of Chang Hsun.

REIGN OF TERROR IN IRISH TOWN POLICE REPRISAL

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 21.—Details have now been received of the serious affair last night at Lahbriggan, a seaside village north of Dublin, famous for its herring fisheries.

The auxiliary police, incensed at the shooting of Head Constable Burke, are alleged to have taken reprisals, and subjected the village to a reign of terror. They set fire to and destroyed a considerable amount of property, including an extensive new factory which, incidentally, belonged to an English firm. About 30 houses and shops were also burned down, including a whole street inhabited by working folk.

Two civilians were killed and several wounded. This morning women and children might be seen fleeing from their homes, some of them wheeling their belongings in perambulators. A number of them had bleeding hands and faces, caused by flying glass and debris.

The police made a fresh drive through the village in lorries this afternoon, discharging rifles and throwing bombs, but no casualties resulted.

Retiring Consul-General Is Given Farewell Dinner

Mr. D. Siffert, who will sail shortly for his home in Belgium after a long period of service as Consul-General for Belgium and Senior Consul, was guest of honor last night of the Municipal Council at a farewell dinner that was given at the Shanghai Club. Another farewell affair being given today for Mr. Siffert is a tiffin at the Shanghai Club by members of the consular body.

Mr. A. Brooke-Smith, Chairman of the Municipal Council presided at the dinner last night which was attended by a representative gathering, composed chiefly of officials. In the address that he gave Mr. Brooke-Smith paid a warm tribute to Mr. Siffert for the great record of achievement that he leaves behind and at the close of this address Mr. Siffert made a brief and eloquent response expressing his appreciation of the honor paid him and making some mention of the events that have unfolded in the years he has been in China.

CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS

The address of farewell given by the Chairman of the Municipal Council is as follows:

"Gentlemen," Good health, God speed, bon voyage and deep regret at his departure are the sentiments to which I have the honor to give expression in proposing the toast of our esteemed guest, Mr. Siffert, who leaves shortly for his homeland upon

FIFTY MILLIONS NECESSARY FOR FAMINE RELIEF

Tax On Transportation May Be Offered As Basis For Loan Appeal

NEED FINANCIERS' AID

New Assessment Expected To Bring Income Of $7,000,000 Annually

All of the employes of the 120 Chinese banks in Shanghai have volunteered to contribute one month's wages in aid of the fund being raised here by the Seven Provinces Famine Relief Association to relieve conditions in the north where more than thirty millions of people are on the verge of starvation due to failure of crops.

All arrangements have been completed for the general meeting that is to be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the building formerly occupied by the German Club on The Bund. This will be attended by representatives of practically all Chinese and foreign commercial organisations in the city, including the British and American Chambers of Commerce and the purpose is to formulate definite plans to open a campaign to raise a minimum of $5,000,000.

Though active steps to obtain subscriptions have not yet been taken voluntary contributors already have subscribed sums that aggregate nearly $2,000,000.

(By Staff Correspondent)

Peking Sept. 23.—Under the terms of a presidential mandate that was issued today restrictions on the export of rice from the Yangtsze provinces into the northern famine area have been removed. The mandate strictly forbids all forms of illicit trading in the cereal.

As a further measure of relief the cabinet has recommended that the President adopt Hsiung Hsi-ling's plan to raise funds for the famine sufferers by imposing a 10 percent surchange on all communications revenues.

COMMITTEES NAMED

(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Peking, Sept. 23.—The French and Japanese authorities here appointed committees of seven and six respectively for the purpose of aiding the North China Famine Relief Work. Mr. Hsiung Hsi-ling and Mr. Wang Tah-hsieh have been elected President and Vice-president of the Provinces Relief Association.

Messrs. Hsiung and Wang have presented the Doyen of the Diplomatic Corps with a suggestion to impose of a new tax on all transportation charges on boats and railways for passengers as well as cargoes. The tax will be offered as security for the negotiation of a loan for $50,000,000 from European and American financiers.

PLANS FOR RELIEF

The loan will be used for famine relief work by means of railway and road construction and conservancy.

It is estimated that the new tax will bring in $7,000,000 yearly to the government treasury.

Tokio, Sept. 23.—The leading newspapers in Tokio and Osaka comment sympathetically on the famine distress in China and urge the Government and the people not to spare their efforts in the cause of humanity and to offer substantial help.

JAPAN PROMISES AID

If the Chinese authorities decide on the issue of a foreign loan for the relief of the famine areas, the newspapers urge that Japan

GENERAL SEMENOFF

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, September 22.—During the negotiations between the Chita and Verdhne-Udinsk delegates at Gongota station, the latter adopted a most uncompromising attitude, declaring that all the Governments in Far Eastern Russia must submit to Verdhne-Udinsk, and that the Government of the Buffer State must be made up only of Socialists in accordance with instructions from Moscow. In the case of non-compliance with these demands, M. Krasnoshchekoff threatens to advance to the east, saying that he is not afraid of the Japanese.

Ataman Semenoff has issued a counter-proclamation, stating that the demands of the Verdhne-Udinsk Government and the proclamation, issued by the Vladivostok delegates, calling upon the population to rise against the army, are detrimental to the peace of Far-Eastern Russia. He announces that, although the army sincerely desires peace, yet it is strong and ready to resume the struggle to maintain a state of order.

It is reported that Ataman Semenoff has already violated his agreement, and that clashes are occurring in the Transbaikal between his troops and those of the Verdhne-Udinsk Government, particularly at Aksha.

KIANGSU PEOPLE OBJECT TO WANG AS CIVIL CHIEF

Sun Tsen-chia Objected To As Mayor By Peking Commercial Bodies

Peking, Sept. 23.—Chang Chien has telegraphed to the Government, expressing the opinion that Kiangsu should be governed by a native of that Province. This is taken as indicating that the appointment of Wang Hu as Civil Governor of Kiangsu is unpopular.

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, September 20.—Sun Tsen-chia recently appointed Metropolitan Mayor, is meeting with much resistance, the local gentry and merchants having decided to unite with all public bodies to send representatives to file a protest with the government.

Chang Wen-sun has declined to accept the Tuchunship of Anhwei and recommended Chang Hsun for this post. Li Kuo-tsen wired from Tatung, Anhwei, to Peking to the effect that the people there were opposed to the assumption of Tuchunship of Chang Wen-sun. Same objection was raised by the militarists in Anhwei in a message received here yesterday on the ground that Chang Wen-sun was the follower of the imperialist Chang Hsun.

It was reported yesterday that the Waichiaopu has despatched a telegram to the Diplomatic Commissioner at Hankow ordering the latter to submit a detailed report on the conditions in the Russian Concession of that port and also state the number of Russian subjects staying at Hankow. It is said that the Government is preparing to take back the rights of the Russian Concessions in the country.

Peking Chiefs Refuse To Heed Appointment Made By Romanoffs

Prince Koudacheff Rejects Hint For His Resignation And Official Mandate Is Issued To Sever Relations

(Reuter's Service)

By Staff Correspondent

Peking, September 23.—A presidential mandate was issued today which definitely cancels recognition by the Peking government of the Russian Legation and Russian consulates in China. The mandate carries the assurance to Russian residents of China's friendliness toward them and assures them of just treatment. Orders are issued to the Foreign Office to arrange to take over Russian concessions and to administer Russian interests.

As a result of negotiations between the mission from the Far Eastern Republic, Verdhne-Udinsk, headed by Yourin, and the Peking Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the days of the Russian Legation and Consulates in China are now believed to be numbered.

It is authoritatively stated that orders have already been issued by Prince Koudacheff, the Russian envoy at Peking, to the various Consulates, instructing them to be ready to haul down the Russian flag at any time.

Although there is no intimation that China is soon to recognise the Far Eastern Republic, events tend to show that the Waichiaopu is decided to eliminate the entire diplomatic and consular services of the Romanoff regime before taking the necessary steps to accord the new Republic its recognition.

The Cabinet, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of the Interior have jointly circulated the provinces and the Chinese ministers and consuls in foreign countries with a telegram to the effect that the Russian Minister and Consuls and Russian individuals in China will be hereafter treated as nationals from a country without treaty relations with China.

According to a telegram received by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs from Mr. Alfred Sze, retiring Chinese Minister to the Court of St. James, the British Government has decided to treat the Russian Minister in London as merely a Russian national.

Incidents which led up to the action of the minister are reported by Reuter's in the following despatch:

(Reuter's Service)

Peking, September 22.—The position of the Russian Legation and Consulates in China was brought into question when a Russian Legation telegram in code was returned by the telegraph authorities with an intimation that the Waichiaopu had issued instructions that no more Russian Legation code telegrams should be accepted.

Thereupon Prince Koudacheff asked for an interview with Dr. W. W. Yen, which was held at the latter's residence. Here Prince Koudacheff protested against the stoppage of telegrams. Dr. Yen replied that code telegrams from the Russian Legation might be connected with political actions which might cause difficulty to the local Chinese authorities, quoting the Kalmikoff case as an instance.

ASKS RETIREMENT

The discussion led to the consideration of the position of the Russian Legation, during which Dr. Yen suggested that the matter would be simplified if Prince Koudacheff voluntarily retired. Prince Koudacheff referred to his obligation to Russia and to Russian people in China, of whom, he said, there were some 300,000. He added that he could only be relieved of that responsibility by his recall by a future Russian Government or the severance of diplomatic relations by China.

Prince Koudacheff subsequently sent a note to the Waichiaopu, saying that he presumed Dr. Yen's conversation was an official intimation from the Chinese Government, and intimating his readiness to retire in accordance with China's wishes.

YEN GIVES IN

Dr. Yen did not at first accept official responsibility for his remarks concerning Prince Koudacheff's retirement, but later he gave in on this point, and suggested a preamable, in which he hinted that Prince Koudacheff himself should put an end to his official position.

Prince Koudacheff then forwarded a further communication, using the suggested preamble but refusing voluntarily to give up his official position.

To this communication the Waichiaopu has not yet replied.

Code messages are now reaching the Russian Legation.

QUESTIONS DIFFICULT

The questions involved are admittedly difficult, seeing that the Chinese Government has no official status in the legation area, while

JAPANESE TAKE BETTER STAND IN U. S. QUERY

Viscount Shibusawa Tells Of Attitude To Be Taken By Nipponese

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, September 22.—Viscount Shibusawa has issued a statement in which he urges the Japanese people to do and say nothing to add to the fuel of anti-Japanese fires in America.

Inasmuch as the Japanese leaders are endeavoring to mitigate anti Japanese feeling through representations which are being made by such friends as Mr. Vanderlip, Mr. Taft and others who know the facts.

ACCUSES WESTERNERS

Viscount Shibusawa agrees with the contention that anti-Japanism in California is "taking an inhumane turn," and that people there "are desirous of driving away the Japanese who have come there by American invitation and helped honestly to develop the State," but he does not expect "the wishes of the Federal Government will be any more respected by Californians now than when the last anti-Japanese legislation was enacted."

He says that the question now becomes one of the political morality of the Americans. He proceeds:

DEPENDS ON PACIFISTS

"I do not think that Americans who love peace will dare to strain diplomatic relations to breaking-point, while we Japanese on our part must not agitate an anti-American feeling."

Mr. Kenzo Adachi, a leading member of the Opposition in the Diet, criticising the Premier's recent statement in regard to California, says: "The question is no longer one of local importance, but is one of international gravity. Japan's defeat in California means her defeat in China and even Korea. Why did not the Premier announce the Government's determination to carry its policy through fire and water for the sake of the national prestige, instead of merely hoping for a satisfactory settlement?"

Deschanel Resigns Office

Millerand's Demonstrative Crowds Fail In Efforts

Briand Expected As Premier

Former President May Accept Portfolio As Finance Minister

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, September 19.—It is said that M. Briand is likely to succeed M. Millerand as Premier, and that ex-President Poincare might well accept the portfolio of Finance in the new Cabinet.

Paris, September 21.—The Journal states that M. Deschanel is confined to his chamber, and it is persistently rumored at Rambouillet, where he is staying, that his condition has become worse. Rigorous precautions have been taken to prevent the approach of visitors.

The message from M. Deschanel resigning the Presidency was read simultaneously in the Chamber and Senate today. The ceremony lasted half an hour.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The message says: "My state of health no longer allows me to assume the high functions with which your confidence has invested me, and the absolute necessity which is imposed upon me to take a complete rest renders it my duty no longer to delay in informing you. The decision which I have been compelled to take is infinitely painful, and it is with a deep heart-pang that I renounce the noble task of which you have judged me worthy."

The President of the Chamber expressed the Chamber's sympathy with M. Deschanel, and M. Millerand associated himself with this expression on behalf of the Government.

The public galleries of the Chamber were crowded. When the President of the Chamber began reading M. Deschanel's message, everyone rose, with the exception of the extreme Socialists, and there was some shouting of "Stand up!" but the Socialists remained sitting and the hubbub soon subsided.

MILLERAND MODEST

The surprise of the day came when the reading of the message came to an end. Everyone expected that M. Millerand would proceed to the tribune, and organised demonstrations were about to break out, but suddenly the Premier was seen in the front row. It was then realised that the Premier had cleverly avoided anything which might have given the proceedings the character of a coup de theater.

M. Millerand only said a few words of sympathy on behalf of the Government and then sat down, amidst loud cheers.

"Had it been possible the Council would have gladly welcomed all his friends to meet him here tonight to bid him farewell, but as this would involve an open invitation to the whole Community, we have necessarily but regretfully had to content ourselves with a gathering which though restricted in numbers, is yet representative of the Chinese and of those nations which have treaties with China.

"During his tenure of office in Shanghai for the past 20 years as Consul General for Belgium and for a total of eleven of these as doyen of the Consular Body, Mr. Siffert has witnessed, China pass through the convulsions of revolution and disturbance; he has seen her change from an Empire to a Republic: he has witnessed the slow but withal certain march of progress and development throughout her vast domain and as for Shanghai, he has seen her change almost beyond recognition: he has seen her foreign population nearly trebled and her Chinese population increased by some 60 percent at least: he has seen her develop from an already important shipping and business center to a center of shipping, industrial, and commercial activity, that has placed her in the forefront as the greatest city of the Far East, and one of the greatest cities of the world.

EFFECT OF CHANGES

"With these vast changes, the responsibilities which attach to a Consular appointment here, and more particularly to the position of Senior Consul, have increased enormously and with them the value of co-operation between the Consular Body and the Council in matters affecting our local government has grown ever more important.

"Perhaps I can best illustrate this point by referring to the many difficult problems which had to be solved following upon China's entry into the Great War, in which Mr. Siffert's country played so conspicuously gallant a part and during the dark days of which, his never failing optimism set us such a splendid example. Seldom did any guiding precedent exist, but each problem as it arose and as it affected us locally had to be grappled with. As Senior Consul Mr. Siffert's co-operation and advice had frequently to be sought and although I was not personally a member of the Council during the years of the War, I know that Mr. Pearce (whose absence tonight, due to the fact that he has not yet returned from his summer vacation, and that of many other invited guests is much regretted) and his Colleagues who served with him, will bear me out when I tell you that this co-operation and advice were readily given so that each problem in its turn was successfully solved.

"It would be idle for me to contend that there have not been occasions, during Mr. Siffert's tenure of office as Senior Consul, when the Council's views have not commended themselves to the Consular body, when in fact we have not seen eye to eye, but where such a complicated system of local government exists, as we have here, differences of view are inevitable. I am happy, however, to say that these differences have not militated against the amicable character of our relations with Mr. Siffert and the Consular Body, which is the more cause for gratification, when it is remembered that whilst the interest and good of the Community as a whole, must always be the first aim of the Council, the first concern of every Consul-General or Consul, must of necessity be that of the nation which he has the honor to represent.

HELD IN ESTEEM

"Of Mr. Siffert's relations with the Chinese it is scarcely necessary for me to speak, since testimony of the respect, appreciation and affection that he has won in their hearts has been so amply given during the past few weeks at public and private functions innumerable, at which he has been the guest of honor, whilst the Chinese Government has recently been pleased to confer on him a very high decoration.

"In his private life Mr. Siffert has earned our high esteem whilst his prowess in the sporting world has won our admiration. He will not be offended when I say that he is no longer in his first youth, yet his ability and agility on the tennis court and in the saddle are an example to the youngest, and such as all may well envy and wonder at.

"Gentlemen, Mr. Siffert is about to take a well earned rest, I ask you to raise your glasses wishing him bon voyage, long life, the best of health and every possible happiness to him and his family—also with this toast let me add that he will always be assured of a hearty welcome from us should he pay us a visit at some future date as we sincerely hope that he will.

"Gentlemen, "Mr. Siffert."

The guests present at the dinner last night were: Messrs. C. Feguenne, Vice Consul for Belgium; Hugo Reiss, Consul-General for Brazil; T. Raaschou, Consul-General for Denmark and Acting Consul-General for Sweden and Spain; Sir E. D. H. Fraser, K. C. M. G., British Consul-General; C. F. Garstin, British Consul; J. F. Brenan, A. D. Russian Consul At Peking Is Dismissed

Russian interests cannot be safeguarded by the representatives of any Power, as none of them has recognised the Soviet Government.

The Russian archives, etc., must be protected, and the Chinese Government's idea is that Prince Koudacheff and his staff should remain at the Russian Legation, and continue to take charge of the archives and property there until a Russian Government is recognised by China.

TO REPLACE CONSULS

There would be no serious alteration in the position of the Russian concessions at Tientsin and Hankow. A Chinese official would merely replace the Russian Consul in each of those administrations. Moreover the Chinese Eastern Railway would be practically unaffected by the change. China would hold Russian public interests in trust for Russia.

The most important development would be the loss of extra-territoriality for Russians, pending future arrangements with Russia.

Though the status of the Russian Legation and consulates in China is not as yet officially changed, the fact that important developments are imminent is proved by the fact that the Legation has warned the Consulates in China to be in readiness to haul down the Russian flag.

(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Peking, Sept. 23.—The German delegates here are taking courage in their negotiations with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Recognition of the delegation is being contemplated by the Foreign Minister, it is understood.

The Yourin mission is also actively negotiating for similar purposes; and the Russian Minister's position is hanging only by a thread. The French Minister appears to be sympathetic with the falling embassy, but the other Allied powers are indifferent.

C. C. WU MAY JOIN LEAGUE MISSION AS WANG REFUSES

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, September 20.—In order to unite the country in facing outside problems the government wired to the Southwest requesting it to select a man to accompany Dr. Wellington Koo and Mr. Tang Chai-fu as China's delegates to the coming conference of the League of Nations. The Southern Government is in favor of C. T. Wang and Wu Chao-chu. Both Messrs. Wang and Wu suggest one another to that post and both have refused to accept the offer from the Southern Government.

The Peking authorities, therefore, had the intention to appoint Mr. Alfred Sze, or C. C. Wei or Mr. Chen Lu to take that post concurrently. In view of resuming peace in the country, however, the Peking Government recently decided to let the South have a delegate to the League of Nations and has telegraphed to Mr. C. T. Wang urging him to accept the Government's offer but the latter strongly refused the same. It has again wired to Wu Chao-chu in the same connection and Wu is said to have shown his willingness to take the post.

Liang Shih-yi and Chu Chi-chien were entertained by the president yesterday at a dinner which Dr W. W. Yen, Chang Tze-tan, Yi Kung-cho and Wu Chi-sun, attended. The two guests were requested to work hard on peace and Mr. Chu was expected to go to Nanking and Shanghai for this purpose. The chief executive also asked Mr. Liang to devise ways of redeeming the Peking notes and maintaining the administrative expenses of the general government.

MOVEMENT AIMED AT PROFITEERS

Question Of High Prices Is Being Taken Up By Tax Payers League

Action being taken by various public bodies indicates that a movement to put a stop to profiteering will soon be launched here in line with suggestions advanced in an editorial written by Mr. T. R. Jernigan which appeared in THE CHINA PRESS yesterday.

The subject has been under consideration by the Tax Payers League and a meeting of this organisation probably will be called shortly in accordance with a proposal made by Mr. Paul M. Linebarger in a communication he has addressed to Mr. Chen Wei-long, President of the Tax Payers League.

"I congratulate the Taxpayers League," says Mr. Linebarger in his letter, "upon this opportunity to prove to the Shanghai foreign public that your organisation has at heart not only questions of political fairness for the Chinese residents of the International District, but indeed the welfare of the masses who inhabit the district.

"On the theory that everybody's business is nobody's business these profiteering conditions have been allowed to continue in a way that would never have been tolerated under much of the ancient regime of Chinese law and custom."

Besides the Tax Payers League, it is understood that other bodies have been studying the problem of prevailing high prices and the activities of profiteers in many lines and it is expected that some concerted action will be taken.

POLICE OFFICER GETS HIGH AWARD

A wholly unlooked for honor came to Detective Constable W. J. Russell, who is assigned to Yangtszepoo Station, yesterday when he received notice from the British Government that the Meritorious Service Medal had been conferred upon him in recognition of his services with the British fighting forces in Mesopotamia.

Mr. Russell had seen about two years service with the Shanghai Police Department before the outbreak of the war and he was a member of the first contingent that left this port in 1914 after the beginning of hostilities. He saw service for a period in France before he was sent to Mesopotamia and remained in active service through the whole period of the war up to the time the Armistice was signed.

New Pastor Is Coming For Community Church

The Rev. Luther Freeman

Dr. Luther Freeman, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who is expected to arrive in Shanghai next month to become the first pastor of Shanghai Community Church, has been pastor of the Methodist Church of Pittsburgh, Pa., for the last seven years.

Dr. Freeman is a graduate of the College of Liberal Arts of Boston University and of the School of Theology of the same institution, holding both the A. B. and D. D. degrees. He has served as minister at some of the largest Methodist churches in America some of his posts being at Newton Center, Miss.; Portland, Maine; Kansas City, Mo., and Chattanooga, Tenn. For several years he was president of Morningside College, Iowa.

During the war he served with the Red Cross Relief and acted as chaplain of the forces. He will be accompanied to China by Mrs. Freeman and their youngest daughter. They have a son on the faculty staff of Tsing Hua College, Peking, Dr. John C. Ferguson of Peking was a classmate of Dr. Freeman.

An organisation meeting for the purpose of adopting a constitution and election of a governing board for the new Community Church will be held in the Masonic Building on Sunday, at 5:15 o'clock. Although the Community Church is a direct outgrowth of the American Song Service which has been in existance for some three years, membership in the new organisation will be open to persons of all nationalities who subscribe to the bond of union to be adopted next Sunday.

More than 100 persons have already signified their willingness to affiliate with the new organisation. For the present the congregation will meet in the rooms of the Masonic Hall, but ultimate plans call for a permanent location in the western district of Shanghai.

Territories Welcome Their Acceptance By The Belgians

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 21.—The Times correspondent in Brussels telegraphs that flags are flying from the public buildings in the territories of Eupen and Malmedy in celebration of the decision of the Council of the League of Nations to place them under Belgian sovereignty. The Belgian Premier has sent a proclamation of welcome.

It may be recalled that Eupen and Malmedy were renounced by Germany to Belgium under the Peace Treaty, subject to confirmation by plebiscite. Out of 34,000 inhabitants, only 250 declared their preference for German rule.

U.S. To Be Asked By Japanese To Name Commission

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, September 23.—It is reported that the Government, after repeated Cabinet conferences and consultation with the Diplomatic Board, have decided to approach the American authorities with a request for the appointment of a High Commission, along lines suggested by the result of the Vanderlip Mission, to bring about a satisfactory solution of the California question. In the event of failure or should anti-Japanese legislation in California be duly promulgated, Japan would appeal to the Supreme Court, basing her claims on the American Constitution and the "most favored nation" clause.

The press learns that the Government means to do its utmost to secure a peaceful settlement of the question.

AMERICAN SONG SERVICE

Instead of the usual meeting and address the session of the American Song Service Sunday will consist of a business meeting to adopt a constitution and elect a governing body and board of trustees for the Community Church that is being organised. The meeting will take place at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at Masonic Hall, No. 30 The Bund.

Three Men Claim Record Voyage In 35-Foot Craft.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 9.—What is believed to be a record passage across the Atlantic for a 35-foot yawl was made by the Typhon, which arrived this morning after making a non-stop run, it is claimed, from Cape Race, Newfoundland, to Bishop's Rock, Scilly Islands, a distance of 2,100 miles, in 15 days and 9 hours.

Passengers on the boat were Frederick Baldwin of Toronto, James Dorsett of Washington and William Dutting of New York. They said they encountered heavy seas and came through well, claiming a record passage in their effort to reach Cowes in time for the international motorboat races, which begin here tomorrow.

British Women On Jury; They Convict

Leave At Tea Time, For Home Duty But Others Take Their Place

London, Aug. 14.—"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury," was the address of counsel heard for the first time in the history of English courts recently, when six women formed a part of a jury in the Bristol Quarter Sessions. Six cases were tried, one of them being that of a man who was charged with assault. He was convicted and sentenced to nine months' imprisonment. All the women on the jury voted for his conviction, after hearing the evidence.

At the close of the day's session two of the women asked the court to excuse them from further service because of their home duties. The court granted their request, whereupon two other women in the room volunteered for jury service and were accepted.

The prosecuting attorney congratulated the women jurors on "at last taking their proper places in the administration of justice in England." He declared that justice also was furthered in women accepting jury duty.

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—An unpaid note for four shekels in silver bearing forty percent annual interest for nearly 4,000 years recently was found among the clay tablets at the University of Pennsylvania Museum by Dr. Leon Legrain.

The note was given by a man named Bur-Mama to Il Sinnutum in October, 1962 B. C., the "year in which King Rim-Sin occupied the town of Dur-Damigilisha." Dr. Legrain said a shekel of silver at the time the note was made was equal to about $100 at the present time.

"And I suppose," said another, "he now sells pasterised milk.'

GROUSE SENT BY AIR TO LONDON, WITH SEASON ON

Diners In British Capital Enjoy Birds First Day Of Shooting

MOORS AT RECORD PRICES

King George Rents Grounds Adjoining Balmoral To Entertain Friends

London, August 14.—Shooting on the moors began on the historic "Twelfth" and grouse made their appearance in London the very day shooting started for the first time—that is, lawfully—in the long history of grouse shooting. Boxes of grouse sent by special airplane from the Highlands and Lake district arrived in London in time for dinner to those few favored, or unfavored, ones who had not been able to join the exodus north.

King George was detained in London by the Russo-French mix-up and was deeply disappointed because he could not open his own moors, but the keepers out in the misty dawn on Balmoral accumulated a big bag by noon, which was rushed off by rail to Buckingham Palace, where it arrived yesterday.

This year the moors were rented at record prices, averaging 50 percent above those of last year, due to the keen competition among the war's newly rich and visiting Americans. Outsiders cannot get into Cowes in regatta week, but it takes only a shotgun and a long purse to get into shooting grouse.

The season, though, is more remarkable for its revival of real old fashioned shooting parties than for newcomers. Entertaining roughly on the Scottish moors is cheaper than running big house parties. In the last few days all trains northward have been crowded.

DUKE OF YORK TO SHOOT

The Duke of York will go on Monday to Drummond Castle, Perthshire, the Duke's ancestral seat, where he will remain for a week of grouse shooting. Possibly he also will shoot deer in Glenarty Forest. Afterward he will go to Moy Hall, Inverness, with The Mackintosh before joining the royal party at Balmoral Castle.

Grouse on the King's moors at Balmoral this year are not plentiful, and therefore King George hired moors nearby for his guests. He will remain in the north until September.

Historic Dunrobin Castle, which was partly destroyed by fire, is occupied again and good sport is expected on the moors there this year.

The moors around Harrogate are reported to be well stocked with game, the first birds received in London having come from the the Monteith moors near there.

The general prospects for the season are good. Last year the season was comparatively poor owing to the wildness of the birds and small number of them due to the fact that the keepers allowed the stocks to deteriorate during the war.

GOOD BIRDS IN HIGHLANDS

The birds in the Highlands, although not quite numerous, are generally fine specimens. Those in south Scotland are in excellent condition. On the Yorkshire moors, owing to the abnormally wet weather, a large number of birds perished in the heavy rains. A lack of birds, however, was not felt today, when several parties returned with excellent bags.

In Derbyshire the prospects are somewhat poor, many coveys having been destroyed by the rains, but the number of guns there on the day of the opening of the season did not equal that of other years.

Harvesting is hindering the shooting in Cheshire. Grouse are plentiful there, however, although partridges are as scarce as pheasants.

Throughout southern England many young broods were drowned by floods and early harvesting was responsible for the destruction of many nests, especially by scything. Generally speaking, however, the season promises to be good, as this year the shooting does not depend on novices who are convalescing from wounds received on battlefields but on old parties, which are again united for the season. Around Loch Lomond and also in Yorkshire it is probable that record bags will be reported.

Lord and Lady Cheylesmore have a small party at Easter Elchies; Lord and Lady Elphinstone at Loch Inch; the Duke of Westminster at Loch Stack; the Duke and Duchess of Atholl at Blair Castle; Lord Clinton at Fettercairn House; the Hon. Robert and Mrs. Devereux at Inverlochy Castle; Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Loder at Glendoll and Lord and Lady Blythswood at Renfrew.

Whisky Truck Runs Over Girl

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 3.—An auto truck driven by Charles Parfanifi and bound from New York to New Britain, Conn., ran down and killed Hilda Westerholm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Westerholm, at Armonda, five miles north of White Plains, today.

Following the arrest of Parfanifi by members of Troop K. State police, it was found that he was transporting a barrel and twenty cases of whisky. The police say that he could not produce a license to allow him to transport the liquor and he was arrested on that charge and placed in the county jail. The truck was held by the police pending the outcome of the case.

The girl was killed as she and her mother were walking across the street while Westerholm was having his auto repaired. The family was on the way from Pittsfield to New York City. Parfanifi is said to have been driving at a fast rate. As he went down a slight grade the girl ran in front of the truck and it passed over her body before he could stop. The girl was taken to the North Westchester Hospital at Mount Kisco, where she died. Coroner William W. Mills exonerated Parfanifi. Trooper Baber, who arrested him, says Parfanifi offered him $200 to set him free.

A BUTTERFLY JAZZ

Tiger Swallowtail Executes an Aerial Waltz

Upon meeting one of its own species, the Tiger Swallowtail butterflys will execute a kind of aerial waltz as they flit above, below and around each other in their play on the wing, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington. Coming out into the open fields, their giddy flight leads them here and there in varied course as they visit the flower-tops of thistles, goldenrod and other attractive plants.

Growing thirsty, down they come to some low, flat bank of a sluggish stream, attracted by the presence of others of their kind, and sip away to their hearts' content, pausing only now and then for a brief frolic in the sunlight with some other big, black and yellow vagabond of their own sort with no more in its bit of a brain to worry it.

Strike Will Be Called Is Threat Of Labor Leader

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 21.—The brief official report of the Miners' Delegates National Conference issued this evening is obscure but it is understood to mean that the Conference endorsed the Executive's strike program.

It is stated that Mr. Smillie informed the Conference that the Executive had decided that nothing had emerged during the negotiations with the Government justifying prevention of a strike on August 25.

Delegates of the Railwaymen's Union held a prolonged conference this afternoon to consider the threatened miners' strike but no statement regarding their decisions had been issued.

A special meeting of the General Council of the National Federation of Transport Workers after an exhaustive discussion this afternoon passed a unanimous resolution endorsing the Federation Executive Committee's action in expressing "approval of the right and justice of the miners' claim," and authorising a continuation of the consultations through the Triple Alliance.

The meeting also instructed the Executive Committee to call another special council meeting to report, and recommend any action they might been advisable.

"INDIANS" AND "YANKEES" BOTH WEAKENED BY SHOCK OF RAY CHAPMAN'S DEATH

Chicago White Sox Likely To Win American League Pennant Because Of Unfortunate Accident To Cleveland Shortstop At Polo Grounds

By Sid Mercer

Baseball men generally are of the opinion that the untimely death of Ray Chapman will seriously affect the pennant chances of the Yankees as well as the Indians. Many now predict that the White Sox, a strong contender not directly affected by the calamity, will rush to the front and stay there.

The Sox are practically tied with the Yanks and Indians now and their prospects for repeating as American League champions will be brighter than either of their rivals, who are shaken and demoralised by the tragedy at the Polo Grounds. Then, too, they play most of their games at home from now on.

The loss of Chapman is a blow that has temporarily taken the heart out of the Cleveland team. Aside from the sudden vacancy in the infield there looms the shadow of disaster resulting from a breaking down of team spirit. But the Yankees are by no means unaffected. It is a question whether Carl Mays will be permitted to pitch or whether he will care to continue in a feeling of deep resentment against him springs up in the league. Mays has never been a popular athlete and now some of his associates are trying to revive him as an American League issue.

Mays has not indicated that he will retire for the remainder of the season, and the New York club will resist any attempt by other clubs to dishar him on the ground that he is a menace to batters. However, he will undoubtedly be a target for fans in other cities, and the Yanks will not benefit by the situation.

SPEAKER ABSOLVES MAYS

Tris Speaker, manager of the Indians, was a member of the best Boston club a few years ago when there was frequent complaint that certain Boston pitchers were deliberately using the "bean ball." At one time it was popularly supposed that the slogan of the Red Sox was "Dust 'em off."

Mays was one of the pitchers who was accused of throwing the "bean ball." Speaker probably knows to what extent that charge was justified. The present attitude of the Cleveland manager, however, does not indicate that he regards Chapman's death as anything but an accident.

Speakers is an athlete of highly developed intelligence and a man among men. In a talk with Colonel Huston, of the Yankees, yesterday, he absolved Mays of any intent to drive Chapman away from the plate by throwing a fast ball at his head.

"There is no pitcher," he said, "who ever deliberately tried to hurt a batter with a fast ball. At times they try what we call 'driving them away from the plate.' Batters who crouch and crowd the plate are often moved back by a fast ball inside.

"The Cleveland players are bitter toward Mays, of course. I can't blame them for that. It is the same feeling you would have toward a man who ran down a child with an automobile even though he were absolutely blameless for the accident.

"This bitterness will wear away, I hope. I know I will do everything in my power to promote a spirit of rivalry between the teams that will be without malice. We all have been shocked and later we can talk more clearly and talk more conservatively. I have lost a close personal friend but I refuse to believe that Mays intended to injure Chapman."

CHAPMAN'S 'SQUAT'

John Henry, former American League catcher, accompanied Chapman to the hospital and was the last of his friends to converse with him. Henry assisted the doctors during the hasty diagnosis in the club-house, rode in the ambulance and as he parted from Chapman at the hospital the latter's final words were: "Don't tell Kate (his wife) that I am badly hurt. I intend to beat this thing."

"I believe that Chappie's habit of squatting on the first pitch was responsible for the accident," said Henry yesterday. "I caught for ten years in the big leagues and I know the habits of batters. Chapman as a rule did not take a cut at the first ball. He usually crouched with the pitch as if to size up the height of the ball.

"Mays has a very deceptive delivery. He gets tremendous speed on the fast ball he throws underhand without seeming to exert himself. It was dark Monday afternoon and the ball was a bit slippery, as there had been a light sprinkle of rain falling.

"The ball left the hand of Mays and began to rise. Chapman ducked from force of habit, and he ducked right into the ball, which was still rising and curving toward the plate. It might have been a strike if it had missed him. The doctors said it struck him a little in front of the temple and almost over the eye.

"There is no doubt but that it was purely an accident, but still I think there has been considerable danger from the 'bean ball,' and some action should be taken against it.

"Why, Johnson hit Birdie Cree a glancing blow one day up at the old Hilltop grounds and he was no good for a week. He was at the hospital morning and evening until Cree recovered. Fortunately, the ball glanced off Cree's head, otherwise he would never have survived."

PLANNED TO RETIRE

The Fates could have selected no more popular ball player nor one with better prospects in life to cut down when Chapman was called.

"Chappie" was a country lad from Illinois and his first professional engagement was with the Springfield club, then operated by Dick Kinsella, now a scout for the Giants. He was twenty-nine years old and had been playing in the American League for eight years.

Less than a year ago he married Catherine Daly, daughter of M. B. Daly, president of the East Ohio Gas Company. The bride's gift from her father was a $100,000 home, which Mr. and Mrs. Chapman were to occupy next Fall. "Chappie" had invested his baseball savings in a prosperous business in Cleveland and had intended to retire from baseball at the end of the season.

Want Cobb To Play Role Of Spellbinder

Detroit, September 5.—If the plans of Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the Democratic National Speakers' Bureau, materialise, "Ty" Cobb and other baseball idols will appear in the role of spellbinders during the coming Presidential campaign.

Word has reached here that Senator Harrison is trying to induce Cobb to take the stump with him on a tour of the country in the interest of Cox and Roosevelt.

Babe Ruth, the greatest baseball idol of the day, confessed that he had not been approached on the subject by either Republican or Democratic managers.

HONGKONG LOSES TO YANGTSZEPOO BOWLING CLUB

Another Defeat Is Suffered By Visitors—Lawn Bowls Club Will Play Today

The visitors from Hongkong suffered another defeat yesterday at Wayside Park when Yangtszepoo Bowling Club won an interesting match by 7 points.

The locals were the first to get away with a five replied to by Hongkong with two. A single on both sides and then Yangtszepoo secured another five, and a three making the score 14-3 at 6 ends.

The Hongkongites then got busy and scored two threes and a single, but the homesters still kept piling up the pressure that at the 15th end they were leading 27 to Hongkong's 11, chiefly due to the assistance of three 3s and a two.

After this the visitors put up a sterling game and scored no less than 10 in five end to the Waysiders one. The ultimate result was Yangtszepoo 28 points, Hongkong 21.

For Hongkong Farrell was the pick and played a great game, Muirhead and Lapsley were safe but Simpson was inclined to be a bit heavy.

On the home side, McMurdo was the star and showed glimpses of his old form. Roebuck was particularly good and Bisset and Bicom played very consistently. The teams were as follows:

Hongkong: R. Lapsley (skip), P. Farrell, A. Simpson, J. Muirhead 21.

Yangtszepoo: G. McMurdo (skip), W. T. Bisset, H. Roebuck and G. Bicom 28.

Revolver Shoot Is To End Next Week

Announcement was made yesterday by Mr. Thomas Freeman, Secretary of the Shanghai Miniature Rifle and Revolver Club, to the effect that the September revolver competition for the expert's medal and bar will close on Thursday next, and that it is hoped to have many more entries than at present.

This competition calls for twenty shots to be fired at 15, 20 and 25 yards, within a time-limit of five minutes. It is invaluable to students of the revolver, as it teaches both quickness and accuracy.

Further particulars may be had by telephoning Mr. Freeman at West 635.

TOUSSAINT AND CARNAVARRO BEAT POTTS AND SHELDEN; TO PLAY IN TENNIS FINALS

Postponed Match Goes To Steadier Pair, Which Is Slight Favorite Over Wade-Tanaka Team In S.L.T.A. Championship Tourney; Big Match Tomorrow

By "Forehand"

It took but a short time yesterday afternoon, on the courts of the Shanghai Country Club, for Messrs. Toussaint and Carnavarro, playing through in the semi-final round of the 1920 doubles tournament of the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association, to collect the four games needed to vanquish Messrs. Pott and Sheldon, whom they had played to a standstill the day before.

In consequence, the winners of the above mentioned semi-final match will meet Messrs. J. Tanaka and J. L. Wade in the championship event, probably on the courts of the Shanghai Recreation Club tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock. The public, if the match is played, will be welcome to enjoy it.

When the quartet of semi-finalists started their postponed match yesterday afternoon the score, carried over from Wednesday, read Sets: Toussaint and Carnavarro, two; Pott and Sheldon, one; and two games all on the fourth set.

Carnavarro, whose steady, smashing game featured Wednesday's encounter, had the first service and won his game. Sheldon was again erratic and, although he made a brilliant drive for points, lost more than he gained.

EVENED AT 4-ALL

On Potts' service the score was evened up again; and the losing team also took Toussaint's service and forged one game ahead. The winners steadied on Sheldon's service, however and once more evened the score, at 4-all.

Carnavarro then took his own service and, by a series of sensational placements in the deciding game, he and his partner took Potts' service and the match.

The work of Carnavarro throughout the tournament, to date, has been of consistent brilliance and has easily featured this year's play. Sheldon, of course, can always be counted upon for hair-raising performances somewhere in each game; but this year he has not been steady, and his team scores have suffered in consequences. The other two players are uniformly steady and reliable.

EXPECT HOT FINISH

Expert students of the local racket-wielders seem to be of the opinion that Saturday's match will be a very close affair, with Carnavarro and his consistent partner slightly favored over their opponents.

It is pointed out that Tanaka and Wade have had a comparatively easy time in their preliminary matches on the top half of the draw, while Toussaint and Carnavarro have had hard battles all along the line. This, the experts think, should have brought the latter pair close to the top of their game.

In any event, it is sure that a record assemblage will be on hand to see this exciting championship fought out to the finish.

On Monday, all being well, Secretary A. H. George announces that the singles championship tourney for 1920 will be begun, each pair of contestants in the first round to choose the court upon which they will play, providing it is recognised by the Association.

U. S. TITLE MATCH

Boston, August 21.—William Johnston, national singles champion, and C. J. Griffin won the national lawn tennis championship doubles on the Chestnut Hill courts of the Longwood Cricket Club today by defeating Roland Roberts and Willis Davis in the finals in straight sets. The scores were 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

This is the third time Johnson and Griffin have held the championship. Last year it was won by the Australians, Norman E. Brookes and Gerald L. Patterson.

Roberts and Davis were outclassed from the start. Their terrific service went to pieces before the easy returns of Johnston. The national champion was at the top of his game.

TILDEN DEFEATED

Boston, August 20.—The impossible happened again on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club this afternoon and Willis Davis and Roland Roberts are finalists in the national doubles championship tomorrow as the result of a wonderful victory over William T. Tilden, 2d, and Charles S. Gariand, in five sets, scored 7-9, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. They will meet the former champions, Willam M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, in an all-California, final, the latter team having eliminated Wallace F. Johnson and Stanley W. Pearson in four sets, at 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

It may be doubted whether a more thrilling doubles match has ever been played in this country, or, for that matter, in the world, than that tremendous two-hour session of free hitting, marvelous getting and clever anticipation. The opening set had the crowd in an uproar almost from the start, and never before has such continuous cheering and applause been heard at a tennis match. In spite of the overwhelming victory of the Californians over Williams and Harte yesterday, it was not generally believed that they could do better than perhaps take a set from the Davis Cup combination, and, therefore, when they showed a determination to knock the cover off the ball from the start and actually succeeded in controlling their shots consistently, the gallery rose to acclaim them and was lavish in its applause of every stroke in their great fight for victory.

It did not seem humanly possible that such hitting could be kept up without a real slump for five consecutive sets. Yesterday it had been argued that only the quickness of the match saved Davis and Roberts from cracking under the strain. Today that theory was disproved.

TROTSKY'S STAR IS NOW RISING; LENIN'S WANES

Minister Of War Only Waiting Until Time Is Ripe To Fling Soviets Aside

APPEAL OF PERSONALITY

'Certainly A Fiend, But What A Man!' Say Many Leading Reactionaries

London, July 10.—"A Russian Ex-Officer" contributes to The Times a sketch of the personality and career of Trotsky, the Bolshevik Minister of War. He writes:

No man for the job!—this was for many years the curse of modern Russia. The old regime dragged out its agony without lighting upon a statesman to save the Empire. The great war and the Liberal revolution gave birth to no heroes. The Soviet, whose label—communism—precisely implies an absolute negation of individualism, owes its power, by a caprice of fate, chiefly to the forceful personality of its two promoters—Lenin and Trotsky.

Although these men today ironically symbolise the two crown-shorn heads of the pitifully bedraggled Russian eagle, there is a striking dissimiliarity between them. Whereas Lenin is a dreamer, for whom Karl Marx stands as a Christ and his doctrine as a gospel, Trotsky is essentially a man of action unswayed by any socialistic shibboleths, and prompted only by insatiable personal ambition.

Lenin championed social revolution because he sincerely believed his life's mission was to be the St Paul of Marxism; Trotsky seconded him for different and purely selfish reasons. In imperial Russia all paths to a brilliant career were closed for a man of his origin; the Liberal camp, where intensive political partisanship prevailed seemed equally unfavorable for his aspirations; social revolution remained obviously his only road to power.

MERY OBSOLETE

Lenin personally would not hurt a fly, but where Marxism is concerned he would not hesitate to destroy a quarter of mankind for the furthering of the cause he preached and he looks upon bloodshed as the natural accessory to vivisection; Trotsky never approves of execution without reason, but he unscrupulously murders whenever his own interests, however trifling, are at stake.

A chauffeur once kept him waiting ten minutes for his car; Trotsky, without saying a word drew a revolver and shot him dead. Whereas Lenin often saved the life of a man needlessly sentenced upon the appeal of his relatives. Trotsky invariably replies: "The word 'mercy' has no place in our program."

Lenin is fanatically devoted to his Soviet system, of which he does not consider himself master, but merely primus inter pares; Trotsky is only waiting till the time is ripe to fling the Soviets aside and himself seize sole dictatorship. Accordingly, his secret motto for the time being is: Tant pis, tant mieux.

Lenin's star is now on the decline, that of Trotsky is rising.

ASTUTE ISOLATION

Trotsky assumed quite an exceptional position in the Communistic party as soon as its other leaders split into two opposing factions; the extremists believers only in terrorism and world revolution—and moderates, eventually prepared to compromise in order to secure for Russia a permanent regime as near orthodox Marxism as possible. He astutely isolated himself and attracted a number of followers who may all be termed opportunists. This gave him a free hand to foster disputes between the two main groups and so to spin the first threads of a skillful intrigue for his own ends. The Soviet, which seemed eager to patronise Jews found a determined opponent in the orthodox church, always strongly anti-Semitic.

Trotsky did not lose the first opportunity to smooth his own path toward favorable personal intercourse with this powerful antagonist to Bolshevik rule. The Patriarch of Russia applied for an additional ration, apportioned by decree to men of learning, to which as doctor of theology, he felt himself entitled. Trotsky instantly saw that he got it. The Patriarch when thanking him, could not conceal surprise that Trotsky, a Jew should favor the head of a church hostile to Israel.

'HATE ALL OF MY RACE'

Trotsky replied:

"If you refer to the Jewish religion, I have none. Religion to me is merely opium for the intellect. As to my origin, I cannot help being born a Jew, but I hate and despise all those of my race and they know it, since they have cursed me in their synagogues!"

Whatever happens in Russia in the near future, any possible political change is certain to have Trotsky as its prime mover, assuming he is still alive—and his life is comparatively secure. He has nothing to fear from Lenin, who being a very trusting man, would never suspect his best friend, even in the face of such insufficient evidence as might come to his notice. As to Dzerjinski (the present head of the Extraordinary Commission, whose powers of life and death extend to every Russian save Lenin, Trotsky has been shrewd enough to take wise precautions. He spends his nights exclusively in the luxurious train of the late Czar, surrounded by a numerous bodyguard of Kuban Cossacks recruited from the former imperial escort, whose allegiance he has purchased through a lavish outpouring of gold.

It is always hard to divine the future of a man, especially a man of Trotsky's stamp. But after all as Count Witte said, Russia is a land of unlimited possibilities. Czar Ivan the Terrible's lengthy terror once raised to the Russian throne Boris Godounoff, a gifted but unscrupulous adventurer of obscure origin similar to that of Trotsky.

However, today Trotsky himself scarcely indulges in such gorgeous flights. When questioned lately on future prospects he sternly confessed:

"Should we resign, I shall not cede my power to any but an absolute monarch. Czarism alone would provoke general discontent speedily enough to give me a second chance in life to revolutionise Russia."

He is ready for the role of Bonaparte, but dares not hope to become Napoleon.

INGENUITY IN INVENTIONS

Americans Head Rush Of Applicants For British Patents

The period of grace allowed by the Peace Treaty for the filing of patents in England having lapsed in mid-July, a great rush of applications was noted just previous to that date, three thousand more having been filed from Jan. 1 than during the same period in 1919, exceeding 20,000 in all. The majority of applications were from the United States and Germany, says a London despatch.

American applicants were particularly interested in flying, and the ingenuity of our inventors concentrated largely on flying boats, on subsidiary vanes for counteracting the instability of airplanes and on parachute devices to be carried on the back of the aviator.

German inventors were more domestic in their interests. Self-heating curling tongs seemed to several the great desideratum, but one went a little further afield in suggesting a device for intermittently feeding moving picture films.

Sweden, not to be left behind, with an eye fixed on her next war, proposes a new explosive containing ground pine bark.

Multitudes of "witty" inventions came from all parts of Great Britain—new safety razors, rafts for aircraft, scissors, and also with an eye to the next war a means for making a torpedo float after it has done its work.

A Canadian inventor developed an automobile signal in the form of a bird for indicating the direction in which an automobile is about to turn, and for signaling for a car in the rear to stop.

ANOTHER PRECIOUS LITTLE LIFE SAVED

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are rife at this time, and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours' illness.

The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, in the house feels safe. The occasional use of these Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, and if sickness comes suddenly they help bring the little one through. Mrs. John N. Pringle, Forest Falls, Ontario, Canada, writes:—"I think I can thank Baby's Own Tablets for my baby's life. He was badly constipated, but after giving him the Tablets they relieved him almost at once. I also find them good when he is at all restless and I cannot say too much in their favour."

Baby's Own Tablets make teething easy, are a positively harmless remedy for simple fever, indigestion, colic, constipation, diarrhoea and worms. Obtainable from druggists, also, post free, 60 cents the vial, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

ZION'S FATE IN HER OWN HANDS, VIEW OF NORDAU

Palestine Has Little To Hope For Unless Arabs Can Be Placated

DEPENDS ON RELATIONS

Noted Jewish Writer Believes England Will Eventually Give Up Control

BY DR. MAX NORDAU

London, August 5.—We Jews are a nervous race and easily given to exaggeration. When the letter addressed by Mr. Balfour to Lord Rothschild on November 2, 1917, since become famous as the "Balfour Declaration," became known to the world, reading that the then British Secretary for Foreign Affairs promised "the establishment in Palestine of a National Home for Jewish people," there was an outburst of enthusiasm among Jews all over the world such as seldom, if ever, had been seen before.

The manifestations of delirious joy repeated themselves, if possible more exuberantly, when the magic sentence of Mr. Balfour was literally introduced in the Peace Treaty with Turkey drafted at San Remo in April last.

Zionists had particular reason to rejoice, I, as the author of the Basle program adopted by the first Zionist congress held at Basle in 1897, and summing up the aims of the Zionist Movement and the means by which to attain them, could only be deeply gratified to see the opening paragraph of my draft taken over, without the slightest alteration, into a diplomatic instrument of the highest importance signed by almost all the powers of the world.

HERZL WAS OUTSPOKEN

Skeptics asked at once, not without an ironical twinkling of the eyes, what the exact meaning of "a national home for the Jewish people" was. I knew perfectly well what I meant when I wrote these words. The creator of modern Zionism, my lamented friend Theodor Herzl, had been much more outspoken. With bold frankness, he gave the book which he published in 1896, and which was the starting point of the Zionist movement, the title, "The Jewish State." That was what he had in view, what he aimed at, and he made no secret of it. His purpose was to repeat the exploit of Biblical Ezra and Nehemith, to gather together the Jewish people dispersed among the nations, to lead them back to the land of their ancestors, and restore to them, after an interruption of more than eighteen centuries, their independent State which the Roman legions of Titus had destroyed.

But Herzl, when he wrote his sensational book, was an independent man of letters. He gave merely his own individual views. He was free to indulge in day dreams and could by nobody be taken to task for them.

A DIFFERENT SITUATION

A year later the situation was different. The Basle Congress had the pretension of representing the Jewish people. The program I was called upon to compose was an expression of the will of a responsible collectivity. I had the duty of being cautious and of weighing every word. In 1897 the Ottoman Empire did still exist; Palestine was one of its provinces; although weak and tottering, it was yet strong enough to be redoubtable to those of its subjects who incurred its displeasure.

The unhappy Armenians were there as a deterring example; 300,000 Jews lived in Turkey who were as many hostages in the hands of the Ottoman Government, and whose life and property we had no right to jeopardise by a reckless act for which they might have been made to pay by their cruel rulers.

I was, therefore, careful to avoid the expression "Jewish State" which would have been a declaration of war against Turkey, as at that time revolt, war and conquest would have been the only means of wrenching off a province from the Empire. I chose the words "Homestead for the Jewish people in Palestine guaranteed by international law," which sounded harmless and could give no umbrage to the government of Constantinople, while we at the Congress understood perfectly what we had in mind, and were careful to make it clear unostentatiously, but unequivocally, to the Jewish adherents of the new movement.

Now the British Government, and on its recommendation the Peace Conference, have adopted our formula for their promise of Palestine to the Jewish people. We were weak in 1897, and the most elementary discretion obliged us to attenuate carefully the manifestation of our inmost thought.

England and her allies and associates had not the same reasons for being cautious in 1917, on the occasion of the Balfour declaration, and in 1920, when they drafted the Peace Treaty of San Remo. They were free to define with all precision the exact limits of the concession they were willing to grant us. They judged convenient to offer us what our program of 1897 asked for.

We have no right to complain when seemingly we obtain all we had declared to stand for. But, of course, the same words have not the same bearing when pronounced by different speakers, and it remains to be seen whether the British Government gives the "National Home for the Jewish people" the same interpretation as we did when we set up the Basle program.

I am convinced British diplomacy has made use of calculatedly elastic expressions in order to be free to extend or narrow their meaning according to the willingness and capacity of the Jews for carrying out the task Great Britain expects us to accomplish.

FACTS IN THE CASE

It is not difficult for us to understand what this task consists in. The history of the Balfour Declaration has been overgrown with a luxurious vegetation of legends invented, spread and entertained by people who had personal interest in making believe that at a given moment of the World War they had sought and found means to approach the leading statesmen of England and France to lay before them the hopes and desires of the Jewish people, and to plead with them magnificently, convincingly, for the recognition of its claim to Palestine at the conclusion of the war which they, with an almost supernatural gift of prophecy, foresaw would end in the triumph of the Allies and the breaking up of the Ottoman Empire. This is pure fiction. The facts are widely different.

When Turkey unnecessarily, foolhardily precipitated herself into the war, the Allied statesmen resolved to put an end of her anachronic existence, at least in Europe and in all Asiatic provinces not populated with genuine Turks. England won the Arabs over to her side by entering into a treaty with them which permitted the Sheriff of Mecca, Hussein, to proclaim himself King of Hedjaz, and held out to his son Feisal the prospect of carving out of the Turkish territory one more Arab state, Syria, of which he in due time would become the ruler.

Nor was this all. The Allied governments had some knowledge of the Zionist movement. I myself had on December 5, 1913 a conversation of more than an hour with M. Pichon, then, as again afterward, during the war, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, and informed him minutely of the history of Zionism, of its program, of its moral and material reasons, its immediate aims and its more distant hopes. He remembered my visit three years afterward, in 1916, when the Palestine campaign under General Allenby had begun.

The French Commissioner with the Allied forces, M. Picot, was instructed by his Foreign Office to put himself at once in communication with his British colleague, Mr. Sykes, and to initiate together with him an action which was to awaken in the Jews the hope that they might be rewarded with Palestine if they made an effort to aid the Allies in winning the war. The French Government desired particularly to impress the American and Russian Jews, the two most important sections of the Jewish people, so that with their influence they should up-hold and defend the cause of the Allies in their countries.

Remember that at that time the United States were still neutral, that partisans and adversaries of the participation of America in the war fought hard for their idea, and that the Jews could throw into the balance a weight by no means negligible.

In Russia also, after the crushing defeat of Rennenkamf in the district of the Masurian Lakes and the German occupation of Poland, public opinion wavered and inclined toward a separate peace, and that it was of great importance that the four millions of Russian Jews—without those of Poland—should stand firm for the continuation of the war and loyalty to the Allies.

It was all a one-sided bargain. The Allies spontaneously held out hopes, the few Zionists received them thankfully, and the Jews in all the Allied and neutral countries learned with enthusiasm that in a certain manner they had become allies of England for her enterprise in Near Asia.

THE CASE WITH ENGLAND

England makes no sacrifice by promising the Jews Palestine as a National Homeland. She will not annex and retain as a new permanent possession her Palestinian conquest, as the Allies have solemnly declared that they did not wage war for selfish profit. But neither can she abandon the country, which in this case would immediately become the bone of contention between France, claiming it on the strength of a traditional influence exercised through centuries, and the new Arab kingdom proclaimed a few months ago in Damascus and pretending to imply with Syria the whole of Palestine.

Here Zionism very opportunely comes in and presents itself as an outlet from an awkward dilemma. If we Jews undertake to back the British position in Near Asia and to hinder foreign, possibly rival, influences from prevailing there and from entering into conflict with vital interests of the British Empire, we render England a serious service, which is well worth a consideration.

The ultimate meaning which England will attach to the Balfour declaration and the San Remo decision will entirely depend on the extent to which the Jews show themselves capable of becoming a strong and unconditionally reliable asset in her world policy. If the experience of some years of the exercise of her mandate over Palestine proves to her convincingly that the settling of Jews in large numbers in the land of their ancestors does not add to her military burden, but on the contrary makes it easier to bear, England will, I have no doubt whatever, eventually withdraw from Palestine, recognise it as an autonomous policy and assert only her right of considering it as a "sphere of influence."

In this case the ideal of Zionism will be fully, and I may say gloriously realised. But if, from lack of energy and of readiness for financial sacrifice, we are slow in taking effective possession of the land; if, from want of cleverness, we miss the opportunity of becoming largely, indisputably preponderant by our numbers, by our economical success, by our cultural creations, our moral superiority and by our social righteousness; if, through absence of political tact we stir up trouble with the Arab inhabitants and force England to a military effort against them, she will unhesitatingly give her declarations the narrowest interpretation consistent with her reputation for loyalty to her pledged word, and individual Jews will, perhaps be able to found a home for themselves in Palestine, but the Jewish people collectively will be as distant from its aim of living a normal national life in its own independent homeland as it ever was during the Ottoman rule over Palestine.

GERMAN COLONY IN BRAZIL

First Contingent Of Band Of 2,500 Emigrants Sails From Hamburg

Berlin, August 13.—Four hundred and twenty-eight German emigrants sailed from Hamburg on Thursday on the steamer Cuyaba for Brazil. This is the first contingent of a total of 2,500 German settlers who will go to Brazil at the expense of that Government, the other contingents planning to sail in September or October.

Among the passengers was a small group of representatives of the learned professions who are going to Brazil to organise the German settlements. They carried credentials from the Imperial Emigration Bureau.

HOUSE SHORTAGE

Stockholm, Sept. 20.—Owing to the great shortage of houses, thousands of people are without homes, and are taking refuge in old schools and workhouses.

SURVIVAL of the fittest, is the ancient law throughout the world. And nothing succeeds like success. No doubt you are anxious to be successful in your export business, especially in your Musk business—an article in which all the human senses are brought into play when testing, therefore can you afford to buy any kind of Musk? Because others have been buying adulterated Musk for years, there is no reason why you should. Send $300 through the Chinese Post Office to MR. ELLY WIDLER, TA TSIENLU, SZECHUEN PROVINCE and he will mail you a sample of one pound of WIDLER'S MUSK, the Musk you will eventually buy. Forget all the other trade names by which Musk is known. Tel. Trapped At Last By Their Finger Prints on the Murder Car

How the Marks of Their Guilty Hands Upon the Stolen Automobile Betrayed and Now Accuse After Two Years the Brutal Murderers of Pretty Edith Janny and Her Betrothed

A Portion of the Skin Upon a Finger, Greatly Magnified. Just as the Lines Upon No Two Fingers Are Alike, So the Scientific Detectives Find on the Texture of the Skin Itself Betraying Differences.

"When young Kupfer said—'well, we've only two more blocks to go now'—they realized that the time for action had come. Some signal passed between them; coldly and callously the man in the rear seat drew his revolver and shot the girl and her sweetheart."

AT midnight on the 21st of August, 1918, Edith Janny and Arthur L. Kupfer, popular and well-to-do young folk of Perth Amboy, N. J., bade friends at Highland Park, some miles away, good night and started home in Kupfer's high-powered car. The two were engaged to be married. They had attended a dance with two other friends, had taken those friends home and then had paid the late visit to the Highland Park residence.

"What shall we give you for the wedding?" cried one of the friends from the doorway as the two started to speed away.

"Oh, just wish us good luck and happiness for all our lives," laughingly Miss Janny cried back to them.

Two hours later Dr. Frank Moore, the superintendent of the New Jersey Reformatory, on the outskirts of Rahway, was awakened by the sound of two pistol shots. He sprang from his bed and looked out upon the moonlit road. A little distance away an automobile had stopped. Dimly he saw two men hurl the body of a third from the front seat. In this seat he also thought he glimpsed the form of a woman leaning against the side, as though, he thought, asleep. He ran down stairs and out the door. The automobile had vanished.

He found lying upon the road young Kupfer. There was a bullet wound in the back of his head and he was plainly dying. He did die a little later without regaining consciousness.

Doctor Moore telephoned to the police and in less than ten minutes from the firing of the shots the pursuit had been started.

At daybreak the police found the body of Miss Janny on a lonely road four miles away. She had been shot through the heart. And a little later the automobile in which the couple had set out so gaily but a few hours before was found wrecked and abandoned.

Miss Edith Janny, the Charming Young Bride-to-Be, Who Met Such Cruel Death With Her Fiance.

Here then began one of the most extraordinary and perplexing mysteries of crime with which the police of America ever had to deal. The girl and youth had no enemies and their lives were an open book for their friends. There were no jealous suitors, nor jealous former sweethearts. The motives of jealousy and revenge could be ruled out at once.

Who then were they whom Doctor Moore had seen cast young Kupfer's body out of the murder car?

Why were they riding in the automobile with the couple? Why had three been on the front seat, and why had young Kupfer abandoned the wheel to one of the murderers? This he clearly must have done, the police argued, because only a madman would shoot the driver of such a car while at the wheel, so risking the certain loss of control of the car and possible death or injury through the loss of such control. Were the murderers acquaintances of either Kupfer or Miss Janny? And, if so, what could have been the motive of the cold-blooded and cruel double slaying?

And if they were not acquaintances—if for some reason they had been picked up on the road by the two—then again, what could have been the motive? Not robbery—for in the possession of the two was more than eight hundred dollars in cash and jewelry. All this remained untouched. The wrecking of the car, too, seemed to be a wanton act—therefore it was not possession of the automobile that had prompted the murderers.

Why then had life been wiped out of this pair the very moment when the wide path of happiness together was stretching before them?

The murderers had vanished into thin air! But they had left one clue behind! A clue, however, so intricate, so hedged about with difficulties as to seem impossible to unravel.

This clue was their fingerprints upon the murder car!

Yes, their fingerprints. The man who had steered the car had left imprints of his hands upon the wheel. The second man—he who had done the actual shooting must have touched the sides of the car, the door. The driver had touched the windshield.

But these prints were intermingled with those of Miss Janny, of young Kupfer and of a dozen others who had handled or touched the polished surfaces from the time it had left the garage to the time it was found, wrecked and abandoned. And, besides, there were other and older prints. How was a thread to be found to lead through this labyrinth?

And here a brief digression upon fingerprints and their use in identification. Upon the palms of the hands are thousands of minute lines, little ridges of skin. In these are sweat glands constantly exuding an oily fluid.

The hand is, literally, a card of identification which no one can escape baring to those who can read its scrolls. But, with a library whose units are the number of the whole human race, it is very difficult to put one's finger at once upon the owner of any marks under study. Because of this all great cities now have a complete as possible index of the fingerprints of all criminals and suspects for purposes of comparison.

Somewhere, the authorities were sure, were the duplicates of the marks upon the murder car. But how disentangle those of the slayers from the mass of others? And how, after disentanglement, find in the strange criminal annals their duplicates, and so their possessors? Once this was done there could be no doubt as to conviction. It has become recognized as a rule without exception that the marks upon the fingers of one individual are not duplicated by those of any other individual in the world. No two human beings have the same delicately traced patterns on their digits. No two fingers on the same hand are alike. No two fingers of the ten belonging to one person are identical.

Now, Chief of Detectives Gallatian, of Union County, N. J., where the prosecution of the case lay, is an expert in the use of fingerprints.

So Chief Gallatian made prints of every single one of the finger marks on Kupfer's automobile. He carefully dusted "Grey" powder on the marks made on the dark surfaces and graphite on the glass windshield with a fine camel's hair brush, gently removed the superfluous powder and photographed the resultant patterns. Then he had almost two score different records.

Gallatian next took prints from the dead hands of the girl and youth and eliminated those from the marks on the automobile, and after a time he felt sure that he had eliminated all but those belonging to the slayers. Then came, perhaps, the most difficult part of the task.

The fingerprint records of police departments are kept according to a system which demands a print of each finger and thumb of an individual. And Chief Gallatian's prints were neither complete nor sorted. He had some twenty different marks, it is true. But he could not tell which of the twenty belonged to the same hand, nor which two hands belonged to the same man.

For instance, he had secured three good impressions from one part of the windshield. Obviously these three fingerprints belonged to the same hand. But among the remaining seventeen which two should be placed with the first three? It may be seen that here was a problem that required much patience as well as skill.

But Gallatian persisted. On one side of the car he found two more fingerprints. One of them coincided with the third finger of the three from the windshield. This gave him four fingers of one hand. He found a thumb and forefinger elsewhere, and the forefinger coincided with the first of the four already classified. This gave him one complete hand.

And in this laborious fashion he worked out at last a perfect set of prints for four hands.

But how could he match up the hands so as to get the correct pair for each of the men?

On the steering wheel he had found no fingerprints, because of the manner in which the wheel is gripped. But he did find the pattern of the palms of two hands. He discovered another palm-mark on the door of the tonneau, where some one had evidently gripped it to pull it shut. And slightly below the top of the door were fingerprints. Neither of these palm-marks were Kupfer's or Miss Janny's. He reasoned that the man who shut the door had not gripped the steering wheel. Therefore, the right hand that had shut the door and the left hand imprinted on the windshield belonged to different men. He supplied the remaining left hand to the man in the tonneau and the remaining right hand to the driver of the car and he had the complete sets of prints.

Numerous copies of the records were made and sent to every police department in the country. They were returned with discouraging regularity. No police records contained fingerprints that matched.

For two years, almost, Chief Gallatian kept up the search. And then his untiring patience bore fruit. The New York State Prison Department notified him that they had just committed to Sing Sing a man named Charles Perchand, whose fingerprints coincided with one of the sets sent out by the Union County chief.

Chief Gallatian "went slumming," as he expressed it. He began to haunt the underworld of New York. He heard Perchand's name mentioned. He got a tip from a woman well known in the low haunts of Jersey City and Newark. By what is probably not a mere coincidence the New York police arrested H. V. Lamble, alias George Brandon. And Lamble's fingerprints duplicated the other set sent out by Gallatian.

Perchand and Lamble were confronted with their fingerprints made by Gallatian—Perchand in Sing Sing and Lamble in Auburn. For a while they were stubborn. Then each admitted that he had seen the crime committed. And each accused the other of having committed it. Which one did the killing does not matter at the moment. For each, the police say, has admitted complicity.

Arthur L. Kupfer, the Murdered Lover.

"The prints of the fingers upon the side of one of the auto's doors—from these the start of disentangling and eliminating all other finger marks except those made by the murderers was begun."

From their confessions, according to the police, it appears that they had gone to Parlin, a little town near Perth Amboy, for the purpose of holding up the employes of a munition works then operating there. Foiled in this, they had walked to Perth Amboy, only to find that, as it was after midnight, they had no way of getting out of town until morning. They met Kupfer and Miss Janny driving home, hailed them and asked for a lift to Rahway. Kupfer good naturedly assented and the murderers climbed into the tonneau. One of the men began to boast about his skill as a chauffeur and asked Kupfer to let him drive.

Again Kupfer's good nature was his undoing.

The man got in the front of the car with Kupfer and Miss Janny and drove on. The two had no preconceived plan of robbery or murder. They simply saw an opportunity for crime. And when Kupfer remarked, "Well, we've only two more blocks to go now," they suddenly realized that they must do something immediately if they were to do it at all. Some signal passed between them.

The beast in the rear seat drew a revolver and shot Kupfer through the head and Miss Janny through the heart.

Kupfer's body was thrown out at once in front of the reformatory. But the murderers realized they had aroused the neighborhood and drove on, to throw out the girl's body later on. Then they wrecked the car in the dark and escaped.

There was apparently absolutely no reason for the murder. The men had simply returned death for a favor. Surely one of the most brutal, cold-blooded crimes possible to imagine.

Perchand and Lamble, the police say, evidently thought that by accusing each other they could cloud the issue as to who did the actual killing. But Chief Gallatian has a card up his sleeve that will not leave the issue in doubt when he chooses to play it.

He knows which man sat in the tonneau and fired the pistol. The fingerprints have told him.

MODERN DUPLICATORS

TO OPERATE THE "MODERN" DUPLICATOR-PRINTER

You simply make one original with pen or typewriter, using triple strength copying ink or typewriter ribbon, or copying pencil as if it were the only one you wanted, then put that one on the Duplicator—writing side down—rub your hand or leveler over it to smooth it out evenly, allow it to remain on the Duplicator about two minutes and the writing is transferred to the Duplicator. You then take your letter or original writing or drawing off the Duplicator and put on blank sheets of paper, postal cards or cloth, one at a time, and run leveler or hand over same and perfect duplicate copies of the original will be printed. In this way you can print up to 75 duplicate copies from each original in 15 minutes; then when the duplicates begin to show up pale, simply erase the impression from the duplicator with damp sponge, and then if you want more of the same kind of duplicates, put on the first one (the original) that you wrote and repeat as above.

Hankow Market

Hankow, September 15, 1920.
FINANCE AND MONEY MARKET
A few bills were offering but otherwise there was very little business. The demand for remittance was small. Taels T.T. on Shanghai: Chinese market, hardened to 97, with Foreign Banks selling at 97⅝. There was little or no demand. Dollars remained firm at 70.375-70.475 buyers and sellers. Interest: 9 percent. Changsha Exchange Nominal.
IMPORTS
Piece Goods:—The market is again quiet with little enquiry. A small business has been done in Shanghai cloths. Clearances fair.
Yarn:—No business.
EXPORTS
Business is quiet as usual, and the firmer exchange market does not help matters. Sesamum Seed still attracts most attenion but dealers are not keen on selling, and in view of their short position and conditions in Honan we think they are right. Beans are firmer both at Home and locally, but local prices are again much above parity. Other products are neglected.

Russian Jewels Not In England

London, Wednesday, Aug. 4.—On the highest authority The Daily Chronicle is informed that there is no truth in a report published in a London afternoon paper that the Russian crown jewels have been smuggled into England for sale.

The story was that the jewels had been brought by Bolshevist agents. What actually happened is that certain gems known to be in possession of the Bolsheviki and which once formed part of the Russian crown possessions have been removed from their hiding place, but there is no foundation for the report that the Russian crown or part of regalia are in England.

As a matter of fact there is no law to prevent the sale of the Russian Crown jewels in this country if they are offered by the de facto Government in possession of them. The present hiding place of the Crown jewels that remain in the hands of the existing Russian regime is known to certain authorities in this country, and it is also known that they are in a secret receptacle with much other specie of extremely valuable character, the worth of which has been competently estimated.

Chinese Students Need To Develop The American Spirit

BY SWAN SENN

IN THE CHINA PRESS of September 21, one may find a very interesting but discouraging letter by Mr. Jameson Y. Chang, of Nanyang College, Shanghai. The letter reported that as in American colleges and universities there are elections every year for the most perfect and the most beautiful students. This sort of election has been accordingly inaugurated in Nanyang College under the auspices of the Nanyang Students' Association, for the first time in China.

No doubt, the students of Nanyang College have now introduced into the Chinese school life a very bright, interesting and fresh western activity. Definitely, this sort of election is, as Mr. Chang stated, an interesting social amusement. And Americans are absolutely right to hold it every year with the view of promoting the good will among themselves and encouraging students activities. But for Chinese students this sort of election is not proper, or more limitedly speaking, timely. And an untimely act is a mere waste. Peace and prosperity reign all over America while China lacks both. To be sure a costly dress well becomes a rich man, but is it not folly for a poor fellow to try to imitate the rich man? Harmonious musical notes increase the pleasure of a merry-making party but they sound quite sad to a mourning orphan. And how is China today? Is it time for her people, especially her students, to search after things merely pleasurable and interesting?

In recent years, the Chinese students have displayed a keen desire to imitate everything from America. This we must take as a good sign for the future of China, for Americans, as a whole, set no bad examples for others to follow. But one thing the Chinese students must not fail to observe is that the first and most important thing they have to do before imitating any other feature of Americans' life, is to create and cherish within themselves the American spirit. If any one desires to ask the real meaning of the American spirit, the answer is immediate. Everything, American done, is rightly and energetically done and done at the right time. That the Americans did not participate in the European war until peace and justice had been trampled down by Germany, but that once Americans did go in they participated with all their might, suffices to prove my statement. Anything, not rightly done, is of course to be condemned. Anything, rightly done at the right time, but not energetically done will fail of full success while, however right and energetic one may be, if the time chosen be wrong, failure will again be the mark. So let us ask again, is this the time for Chinese students to search after things pleasurable and interesting?

Every true patriot will disclose his patriotism in even infinitesimal things concerning the general welfare of his country; and every true patriot of China today will worry all the day long and have not even a single minute to rejoice. With one political gang displacing another, the tyranny of militarism holding its sway and the increasing wretchedness of her financial conditions, China has been daily threatened with dismemberment. Small civil wars have taken place one after another and the so-called peace protectors are the real peace destroyers. In fact but for her wide dominions and vast population, we should have long ago lost our independence. But we have still maintained an optimistic view because we have placed our hope in our bright, youthful students. We know that the Peking government can never represent the Chinese sentiment and that the patriotic students of today will be the able statesmen of tomorrow. But if the students fail us, what is left for China? Nothing! They must comprehend what huge burden they have upon their shoulders. They must look upon themselves as the soul of their country. They must waste no energy and not a bit of time in attempts to do things not fundamental to their sacred duty of country reforming. In short, they must build up and store the strength of their body and soul for the making of a "New China." The work is hard but it is holy. It is the Chinese students who must combat suffering by patience triumphing in their integrity and who, while their feet are bleeding and limbs failing them, must still walk upon their courage.

And now China must face another big calamity. Famine extends from Paotingfu southward more than one thousand li affecting thirty to forty million people and demanding a relief fund of not less than $200,000,000 No intelligent Chinese is shut out from the news that the people of the famine districts are bitterly struggling to maintain life by eating roots and leaves of trees and that parents are poisoning their children to save them from miserable death by starvation. Foreign and Chinese newspaper editors alike have written their leading articles on the famine; and famine relief has become a household conversation in foreign as well as Chinese homes. Indeed nothing could be more tragic than this unprecedented calamity. Thirty million Chinese are starving to death. Only ten million people were killed in the great war! How can the students proceed with their merry-making?

Of course this particular matter is of slight importance; but as China is waiting impatiently upon her students for many things, they must be strongly warned that the state of their country is too grave for simple merry-making. They desire to imitate American students but they must develop the American spirit first.

We expect that the students will try to plan for the support of General Wu Pei-fu's proposal of a national constitutional convention, that they will be firm in their demand for the punishment of the traitors and that they will waste no time; and that they will carefully watch their government and guard it against the misdeeds and mistakes of the past.

And in the present crisis we are eagerly expecting that the students will contribute whatever is possible towards the famine relief to save their northern starving brethren. Of course to plan for the famine relief work is not their business, but they can help. This is the right time for energetic action. The students are therefore strongly advised that they must understand that they must not, while death is striking down every minute of the day, every day, in the north, and their country is overcast with the danger of dismemberment, they must not indulge in merry, time-wasting pranks, for now is not the time.

NO EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT EITHER

The Shanghai Branch of the Chinese-American Bank of Commerce means to start well. I see that our senior contemporary announces that "A reception will be held by the officers (of the bank) from 10 a.m. to A p.m."

It looks like a long sitting.

It is not so in America. No, sir, here is the wail of a writer to "Town Topics."

The saddest are these: We can't "say WHEN:"

A NEAT RETORT

Two German officers were dining at Brussels and one of them, with a very imperfect knowledge of French, ordered "Salade a la Parisienne." The salad was duly brought, and the German, in accordance with usual custom, found fault with it in the following words:

"You call this a Parisian salad: In Berlin we give that sort of things to the pigs."

The waiter replied: "Here also monsieur:"

STILL IN EMBRYO

Frederick Lonsdale in his evidence in the famous "Mountain Maid" case told the judge that he had written lots of plays but the best of them were still in his head.

There are others, my brothers, some others,
With good eggs yet still to be hatched;
There are dozens, or more, who have good things galore
In their craniums bald and well-thatched.
There is Stuntley, the coming inventor,
Has a trump card he hasn't yet led;
But the scheme, though complete, can't be set on its feet—
Because it is still in his head!

There are skivvies, ye civvies, some skivvies;
Who, with souls above servitude mean,
Become film-struck and sigh their desire ere they die
To be "featured" as stars of the screen.
There is Mary Louisa, cook-housemaid,
In the world's sweetheart's footsteps she'd tread;
An end not yet in sight, she is "Mary" all right;
But the "Pickford" is still in her head!

There are Bumbles, no grumbles, some Bumbles
Who talk much, but are sparing in deed;
A deliberate race, so deficient in pace,
That a tortoise could beat them for speed.
Some are out for a beano called "Housing;"
But it's rough on the poor newly-weds
That they cannot be let to the house-hunters yet,
As the woodwork is still in their heads!

THE THREE TYPES

Roughly speaking, men in love divide into three types of lovers:

First, the average lover. Temperature remains normal, with slight rise in the evenings. Continues to attend to business. Feeling of uneasiness if called by endearing names over office 'phone. Regular diet, but smokes rather too much. Anxiety strongly marked as to how his income will cover a house and garage in the country, adding the cost of his season ticket.

Second, the fearful lover. Temperature inclined to be subnormal at times. Physical type a hulking brute of a man, liking small women, only he feels rather coarse and rather gross when with them. He is the physical type generally attributed to the cave man, but this is an error. (See cave man, later). Is six months getting up enough courage to squeeze a five and a half hand, and then crushes it to death. Reads poetry, and is very early for all appointments.

Third. The cave man. Temperature normally high with dangerous rises. Physique rather under-sized. Is attracted by large women, whom he dominates. Is assured, violent and jealous. Appetite fastidious. Takes sleeping powders during course of disease, and uses telephone frequently to find out if the object of his affections is lunching with another man. Is extremely possessive as to women, and has had in early years a strong desire to take the other fellow's girl away from him."

WHY CHINESE CHRISTIANS WILL NOT ATTEND THE TOKIO CONVENTION

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: Permit me to state a plain fact regarding the attitude of that portion of our people who have embraced Christianity towards the forthcoming convention of the World's Sunday School Union. Early this year when an invitation was sent to us to attend the proposed convention, it was decided by Chinese leaders of the Sunday School work that for the sake of avoiding open friction and bad feeling, we would request those in charge of the holding of the convention to have it meet elsewhere than in Tokio. As no favorable action was taken upon this request, there was and still is general feeling that we Chinese Christians had better abstain from attending the convention. Up to this day not one Chinese Christian body has signified its intention to send any delegation to it and not one Chinese Christian leader has applied to go.

I read in your issue of even date to the effect that .... "the committee (which means the executive committee of the Sunday School Union of China) is taking steps to arrange for the appointment of a number of delegates to go to the Tokio meeting." This statement, I understand, is not correct. If it were, then the executive committee would be doing something contrary to the wishes so clearly expressed by the Christian section of our people as voiced by their leaders.

I am not a member of the executive committee but I understand the wishes of those who are members. I wish to state that I fully endorse their views. What the feelings of our people towards the actions of Japan in China are, require no explanation. Every right-thinking person has sympathy for China. It has been advanced from certain quarters that we Chinese Christians should show true Christian spirit of forgiveness and humiliation by attending the convention. I humbly request those persons to read again that passage of the Bible wherein is described the holy indignation of Christ Jesus on having turned "the House of the Lord into a den of thieves." Christianity teaches Justice as well as forgiveness and righteous indignation as well as humiliation. Thanking you, Sir, for the space you grant to me. Yours faithfully,

CHENGTING T. WONG.

TAFT INTERPRETS HARDING

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: How is it that the average opponent of the League of Nations as it now stands, invariably admits and demonstrates in his arguments that he really has never read and studied the Covenant?

Why is it that the people who insist that our domestic issues are paramount do not raise the question about such legislation as The Federal Reserve Act and its general influence on the country and the people at large?

Isn't it rather funny that ex-President Taft should insist that Mr. Harding is really for the League of Nations but does not know it? This, after Mr. Taft had read the speech of acceptance.

ANDY

"AMICABLY SETTLED"

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: With reference to the incident in Kiangwan on Saturday evening, I have been looking for a reply to "Indignant" in your paper and a report of the matter in the Municipal Gazette, but in vain.

As the matter is one of great importance not only, as "Indignant" said, to racing enthusiasts, but also to foreign rate-payers and Chinese residents as well, I have been trying to gather a few facts which might answer, in a measure, the questions set forth by "Indignant."

As far as I know, the matter has been amicably settled through the good offices of one of the high municipal authorities. The Chinese assaulted is connected with one of the reputable law firms in the International Settlement. He has agreed, for the present, to refrain from prosecuting the two policemen under the condition that they tender him an apology in writing and pay all the expenses that he has incurred.

The two constables have written out their apology and delivered it to the Chinese, but have been unable to raise the money for the expenses. The Chinese has agreed to wait until the end of the month when, it is said, the police authorities will see that the exact amount is deducted from the offenders' salaries.

So the matter rests.

But "Indignant" raised three pertinent questions in the latter part of his letter. Of these, I shall only attempt to answer the first two.

Members of the International Settlement Police are sent to Kiangwan on race days in compliance with the express request of the management of the International Recreation Club. Some are armed and others are not.

The fact that one of the valiant offenders had a pistol proved that he was, presumably, a trusted employe of the Shanghai municipal force.

Hoping "Indignant" will be able to secure some authentic information with regard to his third question—"Why are drunken constables allowed to be armed and to do police duty in Kiangwan?" and enclosing my card I am,

Yours faithfully,
"Half-Informed."

CHINESE-FOREIGN FAMINE RELIEF COMMITTEE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: On behalf of the Provisional Committee now at work on the initial labor connected with the raising of funds for the relief of the 30 million famine sufferers, I would like to bring the claims of this humanitarian effort before the readers of your paper.

The Chinese business and other interests here are responding nobly to the call from their starving fellow-countrymen and have already promised close on $1,800,000, while we have the promise of one handsome gift of $100,000 from the British-American Tobacco Co. Ltd. and smaller sums from other foreign sources, but we will require all the help possible in order to raise the five million dollars aimed at. The spirit in which the Chinese are looking on this work of relief is indicated by the promise of one month's wages from the employes of the Chinese Banks in Shanghai, and as there are about 120 such banks here, the total sum thus realised will be quite considerable.

It is hardly necessary in this letter to give details of the extent of the famine and the dire distress in the large famine areas for this has already been well put before your readers from the pen of your own correspondents in the affected districts; and I am sure no further words of mine are necessary to commend this famine-relief effort to the charitable public of Shanghai.

The Treasurer of the Provisional Committee is Mr. H. C. Sung, Manager of the Bank of China, and subscriptions can be sent to him at 22 The Bund, or if it is any convenience to intending subscribers I will gladly receive and forward any sums sent to me at 20 Museum Road.

May I further trespass on your space to call particular attention to the meeting arranged for Saturday next, the 25th inst. at 22 The Bund (the old German Club) at 4 p.m. when definite plans will be formulated for carrying through the work of famine relief commenced by the Provisional Committee. I am asked to announce that all interested are most cordially invited to attend this meeting. I am,

Yours faithfully,
Wm. E. Souter.

OPIUM SELLING IN SHANGHAI

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: In view of the considerable increase in the retail trade in opium, ratepayers will do well to take more than a superficial interest in the judgment delivered at the Italian Consular Court on Monday last. A foreigner, Mr. F. Pariani admitted that he is the proprietor of a number of shops where a deadly poison has been sold, yet said he knew nothing about it; and because it was not proved that the said foreigner actually handed the opium to the buyer, and because "it did not appear that opium represented the main article of trade of the Sino-Italian Dispensary" the case was dismissed, without either caution or reprimand of the defendant.

Mr. Ros, the Consular Judge admitted that the case disclosed an infraction of Italian law which permits one individual to have a license for only one dispensary, whereas the accused had several. But instead of acting on this Italian law and closing down the surplus shops, Mr. Ros only "advised the police to make further inquiries as to the nature of the premises . . . and as to the qualifications of the manager of the dispensary, and report to him." When the purchase of opium at all the places has been proved, and proprietorship admitted, the ordinary man is puzzled to understand why further inquiries must be made before action is taken, and as all concerned are now forewarned and inquiries will be increasingly difficult to make, we are bound to regard this part of the judgment as decidedly unsatisfactory. If the Italian Consulate wishes to uphold Italian law, and cause it to be held in respect by all men, is it not to its own interests to itself make any further investigations and close down all but the one permitted dispensary, and further see that this one has the properly qualified dispensing chemist? If the Italian Consulate does not go so far as that in assisting the well-meant efforts of the Police and the Anti-opium Association, it has only itself to blame if the rumors now afloat gain more credence.

Some of the shops kept by the defendant are in alley-ways off the main street, which is an unusual situation for dispensaries seeking to sell all kinds of patent medicines. As regards "advertising" the sale of opium, it may be mentioned that one of the shops supplied with the opium a ticket saying that the securing of 20 such tickets would entitle the holder to a free box of opium. One wonders if a similar ticket would be given with, say, castor oil—supposing that such an article could be obtained at these "dispensaries"! While the legal judgment must be respected, yet the public is entitled to know more of the facts about a case where a foreigner is concerned in running a number of alley-way "dispensaries" or "godowns" where a dangerous drug is sold, with no indication of it's being a poison, and in some cases under the name of medicine or breaking off opium!

The Italian Court's delivery about Municipal Bye-law 34 raises a point which needs clearing up at once. It was said that "the authority to charge a fee for the keeping of opium shops was no longer vested in the Municipal Council, since it had lost the right of issuing licenses for such kinds of shops." But Bye-law 34 says that no person shall keep a shop for the sale of any noxious drugs and poisons or patent medicines . . . without a license first obtained from the Council, and in the case of foreigners, countersigned by the Consul of the nationality to which such person belongs." Any person who offends is liable to a heavy fine. Does this mean absolutely nothing, and is there really no protection in this Settlement from whoever cares to sell dangerous drug—unmarked as such and that opium may be sold with impunity all over the Settlement? If so, this state of things is entirely opposed to the spirit and intention of past actions of ratepayers who determined to eliminate opium dens and opium shops from our midst, and the sooner we come into line with other civilised communities, the better for everybody.

The clear and unmistakeable voice of the ratepayers should be raised without any loss of time that such a situation will not be tolerated a moment longer than is necessary to make any needed change, so that no quibbles be allowed to stand in the way of the straight workings of common-sense and morality in this community. This is all the more important as the Chinese Penal Code counts the sale of opium as a punishable offense and we cannot afford to permit a lower standard in this Settlement.

To a "man in the street" with no legal fictions to addle his brains, it would seem quite clear from Bye-law 34 that if an individual has no license for a shop at which opium has been sold, he is liable to the penalty mentioned in that Bye-law. I hope the police will take such action as will amply prove this; otherwise let the Council and ratepayers generally awaken to the fact that if this Bye-law is inoperative, the social fabric of this Settlement is in a parlous condition. I am etc.,

X.

ANOTHER FIRE BALL

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—I read the article in your paper this morning re the most remarkable electrical phenomenon ever recorded in Shanghai. About two years ago I witnessed the same thing. I had my window facing the central buildings and one afternoon about 4 o'clock during a thunder storm I heard a report and on looking out on the roof of the premises now occupied by the Violet Toilet Saloon, I saw a ball of fire the size of a golf ball with a tail of fire. It rolled quickly along the corrugated iron roof rattling as it grazed along and when nearing the end it shot up into the air and fell into the chimney of the building then occupied by the Walkover Shoe Co., and now occupied by Mr. Tobias the occulist. The manager of the Walkover Shoe Co., can substantiate this occurence as it damaged the inside of chimney. It was a pretty sight as it shot along and it went rather fast. It was the first that I had ever seen.

Yours Truly,
R. Roth.

Those Convenient Modern Houses

They had at last obtained a villa in a suburb of London, and he was hanging the pictures. There was a certain photograph of his wife which he decided must go up, but which was too small to suspend from the rail by a cord. He thereupon got a substantial nail and hammered it into the wall. There came a knock at the door. "It's Mr. Nexdor," said his wife, running to the window. "Your hammering has disturbed him." Mr. Newbride hastened to apologise.

"Oh, I don't mind the noise," replied Mr. Nexdor, cheerily. "I only came to ask if I might hang a picture on the other end of the nail."

Aurora Caused By Electric Impulses Emanating From The Sun—Its Violet Magnetic Disturbances Affect The Earth

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"How do they know the time it took the recent aurora borealis to reach us, and how do they measure the speed of light?"

The aurora is believed to be caused by electric impulses emanating from the sun and associated with the outbreak of sunspots. The fact that the flickering and pulsing lights in the sky are coincident with violent magnetic disturbances which affect all kinds of electric telegraph apparatus, is evidence in support of this hypothesis.

As to the precise nature of the impulses transmitted from the sun, and as to the manner and speed of their conveyance through space, several different theories exist.

Svante Arrhenius supposes that streams or clouds of negative electrons are driven from the sun by the pressure of the light-waves, and that on encountering the lines of magnetic force which surround the earth because it is a great magnet, the luminous phenomena called auroral, or polar, lights appear in the high atmosphere. They center around the north and south magnetic poles of the earth; and, since the north magnetic pole is situated in the northeastern corner of North America, more than a thousand miles this side of the geographic pole, the aurora is usually better seen in the United States and Canada than in the Old World.

Arrhenius calculates that the electrons would be conveyed to the earth in about forty-six hours after their departure from the sun (though the precise time would depend upon their mass), and this would imply a speed of only 555 miles per second.

BIRKELAND THEORY

Another theory by K. Birkeland, supposes that cathode rays, resembling those that can be artificially produced, emanate from the sun, and on reaching the rare outer layers of the earth's atmosphere, where the conditions are like those in an exhausted "Crooke's tube," they produce the beautiful lights of the aurora. The speed of transmission, according to this theory, would be from one-third to one-tenth that of light, which means that the rays would reach the earth in somewhere between twenty-five minutes and one hour and twenty minutes after starting from the sun.

A third theory, that of Nordmann, assumes that the electric impulse from the sun comes in the form of Hertzian waves, which are those used in wireless telegraphy, and whose speed is indentical with the speed of light, viz., 186,324 miles per second. If this is the case the time needed for the transmission is only about 8 1-3 minutes.

The speed of light is measured by virtually cutting a ray of light into sections and then measuring the time which each section takes to move a known distance. It is analogous to measuring the speed of a ship by the number or knots on the log-line passing in a given time. Various improvements of the apparatus used have been made in recent years, but perhaps the easiest to explain in principle is one of the earliest, that of Fizeau.

FIZEAU'S PRINCIPLE

He placed a toothed-wheel in such a position that a beam of light could be caused to pass through the interval between two of the teeth, and then go to a distant mirror which reflected it back to the wheel. If the wheel was motionless the light came back through the same interval, but if the wheel was set in rapid rotation it was possible, while the light, was going and returning, to have the teeth advance just fast enough to cover the open space and thus cut off the returning light.

The size and number of teeth being known, and also the number of turns per second made by the wheel, it was easy to calculate the time required for a tooth to take the peace of the open space through which the light first passed out, and this time would, of course, be equal to that taken by the light in travelling from the wheel to the mirror and back again. A very small fraction of a second could thus be measured. The total distance over which the light travelled in Fizeau's experiment was seventeen kilometers, and the time required, as shown by the revolving wheel, was 1-18,000th of a second. Multiplying this fraction by seventeen we get 306,000 kilometers as the distance that the light would travel in one whole second. More accurate experiments have shown that the real speed is 299,860 kilometers, or 186,324 statute miles.

MEASURE OF VELOCITY

The first measure of the velocity of light was made by Ole Roemer, a Danish astronomer, at Paris, in 1676, and his method, although not capable of extreme accuracy was grand in conception. He found that the eclipses of Jupiter's satellites always occurred ahead of the mean calculated clock time when the earth was in that part of its orbit nearest to Jupiter, and behind when it was farthest from Jupiter. He correctly concluded that the difference represented the time taken by light to cross the diameter of the earth's orbit, and he found this time to be 16 minutes, 36 seconds. Since the earth's distance from the sun is half the mean diameter of the orbit, Roemer's measure showed that light took 8 minutes, 18 seconds to come from the sun to the earth.

Unification Of Agencies For Relief Of Wounded Urged

BY ANNABEL LEE

It would seem from the testimony gathered from the various departments of the organisation created by the Government to provide for the medical care and treatment of discharged disabled soldiers, that while Congress conceived a commendable program, it unfortunately passed legislation which has reacted unfavorably upon the very men it was designed to benefit.

While this legislation undertook to give such men compensation during their illness, medical care while they were sick and vocational education to restore their earning capacity to normal, when necessary, yet these matters were placed in the hands of three separate and distinct agencies without a co-ordinating head, hence confusion is the result.

"You cannot run anything with three heads," was the belief enunciated by Congressman John W. Langley, chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings before which investigation of the several departments were heard.

"As a matter of fact, Congress passed laws that cannot be administered," he said, "and it will be my first effort when Congress convenes to present a bill which will reframe and codify all the laws so as to fix one responsible head of the whole bureau and name the Secreary of the Treasury as the authorised head.

COULDN'T AROUSE MEMBERS

"I believe that if Congress had had the information disclosed at the extensive hearings before our committee that it would have appropriated the $10,000,000 provided for in my bill, in addition to the $16,000,000 carried by the Sundry Civil Bill; but it was impossible to get the membership and the leaders generally as deeply impressed with the urgency of the situation as we were.

"One of the difficulties that we encountered was that the leaders wanted to make as good a record on economy as possible, and especially wanted to avoid authorising appropriations of money which could not be expended during the coming fiscal year.

"I tried to get the Rules Committee to get a special rule for the consideration of this Hospital Bill of mine, but they were so crowded with hearings already scheduled that we finally reached the conclusion that the near completion of the Speedway Hospital at Chicago would enable us to wait for new legislation.

HANDLED BY MANY

"However, we all agree that the present legislation creates confusion by its failure to delimit the functions of the agencies involved and to distinguish between appropriations supplied for these agencies. It is a matter of extreme difficulty to tell which a bill is properly charged against.

"As an example of the possible confusion, a discharged soldier makes a claim upon the War Risk Insurance Bureau for disability. He is hospitalised by the Public Health Service. The War Risk Insurance Bureau pays him $80 per month compensation while he is in the hospital. He is discharged from the hospital treatment to the Federal Board for Vocational Education. The Federal Board pays him $80 a month. Unless the Bureau is promptly notified, both are paying him $80 a month.

"In the meantime, if he takes sick under the Federal Board, he is put back in the Public Health Hospital, and if his illness is connected with his military duty he again becomes a charge on the Bureau of War Risk. If it is an intercurrent illness, he remains a charge of the Federal Board and they reimburse the Public Health Hospital for his care. There is always a probability that these bureaus are paying the same bill.

DOUBLE PAYMENTS

"Such cases have been reported. If this soldier dies in the hospital he is buried at the expense of the hospital, provided that the burial takes place locally. If his body is transported to some other place then the charge for transportation and the buried is borne by the War Risk Bureau. If the man is under training by the Federal Board and dies of some disease not related to his military service, the Public Health Hospital could pay all expenses provided that they would be reimbursed by the Federal Board. If the man's illness is related to military service, then he is a War Risk beneficiary.

"There are many mistakes made in this legislation," said Mr. Langley. "Congress limited the pay that the Federal Board could give, thus limiting their power in forming an organisation. It shifted appropriations, making reorganisations necessary, and delays always follow any reorganisation plan; it gave powers to one bureau which should have been lodged in another, such as placing on the War Risk the medical care and treatment of the sick, which would more properly belong to a medical bureau."
